Andrea's toughest ride

Research scientist Andrea Laws-King and her Beaudesert horse Flash are provisional winners of the iconic Winton-to-Longreach Endurance Horse Ride.

The race, considered the toughest endurance event in Australia covers 220km in the harsh outback, and Andrea was among the leaders right from the start.

Andrea spent 10 years at Kyogle in NSW and has a property at Beaudesert. Her horse Flash is a 15-year-old chestnut gelding, home-bred at Beaudesert.

New park is vandalised

Beaudesert police have issued an public appeal after the bicycle installed at Gleneagle in memory of cyclist Darryl Dickson was vandalised.

Senior Sergeant Ken Murray said the damage to the memorial in a new park named in Mr Dickson's honour had caused distress in the community.

"We're asking members of the community to get in touch if they can assist in the investigation," he said.

"We're asking for information or dashcam footage because I doubt there'll be any cameras out there."

The editor's desk

This week parents of children at Beaudesert State High School are preparing to speak up for 13-year-old Onyx John who took his own life after being bullied.

Older generations know about bullies. They have all grown up with bullies about, but that was before social media. In those earlier times, the closest equivalent was passing or receiving notes in class.

Today's victims can be subject to unrelenting torture 24/7, which can leave a young person feeling hopeless and helpless.

On the subject of respect, this week we also had members of the Beaudesert RSL Sub-Branch honouring Korean war heroes, while at the other end of town residents were astonished to find the Darryl Dickson tribute bicycle damaged by vandals.

As adults, we should all do better.

Our scenic spring

By Sofia Matthews

It's almost spring in the Scenic Rim, when the region rings of births and blooms, so mark the diary for the final Scenic Rim Farm Gate Trail for the year, which commences on Saturday 26 August.

The trail features 26 farm gates open on 26 August, bringing together farmers, growers, producers, winemakers, brewers, distillers and flavour-makers across the region who will each open their doors to celebrate where food comes from.

From cuddles with twin lambs at Towri Sheep Cheeses and at Olive View Farm – yes, both have twin lambs –, to fresh produce straight from the paddocks of local farms, picnic selfies with alpacas, stocking up on artisan dairy products from Tommerup's Dairy Farm, and beer and ice cream tasting at Scenic Rim Brewery, visitors will leave with full stomachs and a love like no other for the region.

Some headliners this year includes Australia's largest camel dairy, Summerland Camels, offering the chance to get up close and personal with these amazing animals. There's farm tours, camel feeding, camel rides, and award-winning fresh camel dairy products – dare to try the Camel Milk and Honey Vodka?.

Sip beside the creek and breathe at O'Reilly's Canungra Valley Vineyard, and enjoy all that the place has to offer. Bring a picnic blanket and enjoy lunch with a view as they dish up a $10 tasting paddle along the vineyard's picturesque creek.

Barney Creek Vineyard Cottages is officially opening their cellar door for 2023 – an occasion that only occurs for five months a year. There'll be free wine tastings from 9am to 4pm, a chance to shop their locally sourced produce – relishes, chocolates, olives, and cheese –, and get a taste of what it would be like to stay in their magical cottages.

To live out your floral dreams, head to Elderflower Farm – one of the prettiest farm gates on the trail. Elderflower Farm is a boutique flower farm and shop, offering visitors the chance to stroll around the beautiful flower field, peruse their goodies on offer, and even make your own flower posies – the perfect accessory for spring.

There's many more exciting experiences on offer this time 'round, so visit destinationscenicrim.com for more information.

Park vandalised - days after it opened

By Larraine Sathicq

Beaudesert police have issued an public appeal after the bicycle installed at Gleneagle in memory of Darryl Dickson was vandalised.

Senior Sergeant Ken Murray said the damage to the memorial had caused distress in the community.

"We're asking members of the community to get in touch if they can assist in the investigation," he said.

"We're asking for information or dashcam footage because I doubt there'll be any cameras out there."

Senior Sergeant Murray said it was unknown exactly when the damage was done but it was most likely in the 24 hours before 8.45am on 27 July.

Mr Dickson was a beloved member of the community and keen cyclist who in 2016 was killed doing what he loved.

Scenic Rim Regional Council announced earlier this month that the park in Gleneagle would be named in his honour.

Mayor Greg Christensen said he was "almost speechless" when he heard the bicycle had been vandalised.

"This shows a total lack of disrespect for the community, not just for the family and the devastation of that loss for them," he said.

Darryl Dickson was a highly respected member of the Beaudesert community. Picture: SUPPLIED

"This disrespect to someone who was treasured by the community is just devastating and cannot be tolerated. This is an assault too brutal on the values and standards of our community.

"It has to stop and we do need the community to raise their voice and bring their eyes to help police find and deal with anyone involved with this."

Adults act against bullies

By Larraine Sathicq

The suicide of a Beaudesert State School student has caused an uproar among parents who say the school does little to offer protection to victims of bullying.

A group of them will stage a peaceful rally in Beaudesert on 21 August to make their voices heard.

The 13-year-old known to many as Rose recently began identifying as male and changed his name to Onyx John.

Reeling from unimaginable loss and even while planning a funeral that should never be necessary, Onyx's big sister Ivy Lambert was thinking about other children who may be going through the same thing, creating the Facebook page A Voice for Onyx Rose.

"On Sunday 16th July our Beautiful Rose/ Onyx joined the angels," she wrote. "This world was just too cruel and nasty."

The post attracted a tsunami of condolences, many offers of support and more than a few people with similar stories to tell about school bullying.

Ms Lambert said since the story was published in the media, the Education Department and school had spoken to the family and issued an email to the school community.

She said she was determined to call bullies and enablers to account.

A spokesperson for the Education Department said the school community was deeply shocked and saddened by the tragic loss of one of their students.

"We are devastated by this tragedy, and our thoughts and sincere sympathies are with families, caregivers, friends and loved ones during this difficult time," the spokesperson said.

"The school will rally together and honour their memory while respecting the family's privacy in this time of grief.

"Suggestions that the school has not acknowledged the passing or offered support to the family are incorrect. Staff and students close to the student were spoken to directly, while others were informed at assemblies or through information sent to parents."

The spokesperson said regional staff had been to the school to support the entire school community.

"Senior officers from the department have been in contact with family members and have offered to meet to discuss opportunities to support the school and will continue to support the family," they said.

After Onyx's funeral on 29 July the heartbroken sister said she would host a peaceful "Keep Our Kids Safe" rally outside Beaudesert State High School.

"We'll be meeting at 9.30am on August 21 and we'll post more details on Facebook when we know the exact spot to meet,," she said.

'The Education Department did say they could hold a meeting rather than a rally but a lot of the parents say they would prefer both."

Ms Lambert said Onyx had dreams of working with animals and used to be a keen student in the school's agriculture program.

"He really enjoyed taking part in the cattle show at the Beaudesert Show," she said.

"That was last year but by the beginning of this year it just seemed like things had changed. He didn't want to do it this year and seemed very withdrawn."

Ms Lambert said the family became concerned about the relentless torment Onyx was experiencing from some other students and had been disappointed by the lack of action.

She said the Indigenous liaison officer last year had stepped up for the family.

"She organised a safe place, they call it a wellbeing room, for Onyx to go to at lunchtime," she said.

"But then all of a sudden Rita left the school and when Onyx tried to go to the safe room the doors were locked and no one had informed Mum or Onyx or given an option for a different safe place.

"He didn't want to change school because he wanted to stay with his little group of friends but he didn't want to go to school either.

"He was so young, only just became a teenager in March."

Ms Lambert said the transgender issues were recent and the whole family was involved in the transition process..

"Mum helped him get the name officially changed on the school roll and we all called him Onyx," she said.

"But the bullying started long before that, I think the transgender thing just gave the bullies extra ammunition."

The family also felt let down by Queensland Health.

"We went to Logan Hospital many times to have Onyx admitted to get a bit of help," she said.

"And every time, they sent them home. I've got a discharge letter here from two-and-a-half weeks before he took his life.

"Mum had taken him in to seek help and she begged them to admit him but they just sent them home again."

Metro South Health CEO Noelle Cridland encouraged anyone affected by the tragedy to seek help and provided the number for a mental health crisis helpline (1300 64 22 55).

"We offer our deepest sympathies to Onyx's family for their devastating loss," she said.

"This case has been referred to the Coroner and therefore it would be inappropriate to comment further.

"Ongoing support is being provided to Onyx's family, school community and staff members involved in providing care."

Young people upset by any of these issues may wish to contact Kids Help Line on https://kidshelpline.com.au/ or on 1800 55 1800

Fire ant war costs farmers

By Larraine Sathicq

After the National Fire Ant Eradication Program vowed last week to toughen up compliance measures in a bid to halt human-assisted spread of the invasive pests, Scenic Rim MP Jon Krause said efforts so far had been a failure.

"We've seen two damning reports released lately, one from the Auditor General and one from the review panel into the program, which was published in 2021 but only made public a few weeks back," he said.

Mr Krause said he had heard from local farmers having to deal with increased New South Wales regulations and increased costs to send their hay across the border into New South Wales.

"Farmers are paying the cost but also there's been more and more emphasis put on people treating their own fire ants," he said.

"This is a program that's received I think nearly a billion dollars in taxpayer money over the years but now that cost has been put on to residents to treat fire ants … so we've seen lots of new plans over the years and lots of dollars spent but the fire ants continue to spread."

As part of the plan to ramp up containment and compliance operations, a new containment area was identified.

It comprised a "horseshoe around the infestation" from Moreton Bay in the north, west to the Lockyer Valley, east into the Gold Coast and south to the Tweed Shire.

Mr Krause said it was alarming that fire ants had spread across the border.

"It seems the Tweed Shire is now part of the containment area," he said.

"Of course, I want this plan to work but I think we can understand the skepticism that some people might have about this government being able to get on top of this problem given its track record when it comes to fire ants."

Agriculture Minister Mark Furner said nowhere else in the world had a fire ant containment program worked as well as this one, saying it had protected about 100 million hectares from fire ant infestation .

"This new focus on compliance shows that the National Fire Ant Eradication Program is serious about enforcing the rules that prevent fire ants from spreading," he said.

"Under the Biosecurity Act there are penalties of up to $470,000 or 3 years imprisonment for the most serious aggravated offences.

"The National Program cannot eradicate fire ants alone. We need the community, industry and all levels of government to play an active role in managing fire ants on property they own or manage."

A Fire Ant Suppression Taskforce, separately funded with $37.5 million from the Queensland government will assist with the program.

They said compliance audits would target residents and industries such as earthmoving, quarries, nurseries, civil construction and primary producers who move materials that can carry fire ants every day.

The program will aim to conduct up to 12,000 audits annually to ensure maximum possible compliance with restrictions on moving these materials. Intelligence gathering will assist the compliance team to target the highest risk and most non-compliant industries.

The invasive stinging ants are a threat to the Australian lifestyle, say experts.

Beaudesert marks 70 years since end of Korean war

By Larraine Sathicq

Beaudesert RSL commemorated the 70th anniversary of end of the Korean war on 27 July.

Just four people were in attendance at the Palm Gardens in Jubilee Park to pay respects to Beaudesert servicemen who lost their lives in the battle that ended on 27 July 1953.

They included Beaudesert RSL Sub Branch president Steve Monteith, veteran Barry Fisher, former RSL president Jon Forbe-Smith and current vice president Carol Castles.

Mr Monteith said although it was a small gathering it was important to mark the day on behalf of Beaudesert RSL Sub Branch members.

"We've hardly got any Korean war veterans left, which is really sad," he said.

"It's the forgotten war really and the sad thing is that the majority of people forget it even existed."

Australian Veterans Affairs Minister Matt Keogh marked the day in South Korea.

"True to the ode 'lest we forget', rather than being 'the forgotten war', today we honour the Australians who served with distinction in the Korean War for their freedom, especially those that paid the ultimate sacrifice," he said.

"I am honoured to be representing Australia in South Korea to pay tribute to those who lost their lives, to those whose scars remain some 70 years later and to acknowledge all those still missing in action.

"They will not be forgotten."

Australia was among 21 countries that took part in the war between 1950 and 1953.

Just before the end of the Korean war, 21-year-old Beaudesert veteran Bob Allen found out he was to be invited to the 1953 coronation of Queen Elizabeth II.

On 20 June 1952 the Beaudesert Times had announced that Mr Allen was coming home after 12 months on the Korean battlefields.

"On Wednesday Bob Allen, son of Mr and Mrs Steve Allen was to leave Korea on the first stage of his trip for home leave," we wrote.

"The trip will be in several stages and he may have to wait some time in Japan for transport.

"He has told his parents to expect him about the middle of next month. Bob has engaged in considerable fighting and was once wounded in the right hand."

Big Barbie collection

By Larraine Sathicq

With Barbie fever well underway after the release of the movie starring Margot Robbie and Ryan Gosling, Scenic Rim resident Kirsty Hayward is more excited than most.

Known locally as the Barbie Lady, Ms Hayward sets up her Barbie stall at the Kooralbyn RSL Sub Branch markets every month without fail.

The self-described "Barbie girl" said her stall caters to a specific market.

"I'm selling the dolls to kids and to the mums who want a budget doll," she said.

"I appreciate that they're being rescued and rehomed, so they're affordable for that reason."

Ms Hayward says she also caters to adult collectors via online sales of vintage dolls including those from the 1980s.

With her new enterprise, Doll Dressed, Ms Hayward has also started creating outfits for the dolls.

Starting with just one doll as a child, the superfan said she had lost count of how many she now had in her collection.

"I had sons who were not so enthusiastic about Barbie dolls, so I stopped buying them for a bit," she said.

"I used to know how many I had but I've lost count now."

Ms Hayward said she was looking forward to seeing the Barbie movie, which also features appearances by Helen Mirren and Will Ferrell, in the near future.

Find out more about the rescue dolls on The Barbie Lady Facebook page or visit the next Kooralbyn markets, held on the second Sunday of each month.

Scenic ultra-racers

By Larraine Sathicq

Runners from across Australia, New Zealand, Europe and Japan are preparing to test their determination and endurance in the Scenic Rim Ultra Marathon to be held over two days from 12 August.

Registrations for the event closed on 1 August.

Organiser Andrew Bonney from On the Edge Events, said the run was a highlight of the Scenic Rim sporting calendar.

"The Scenic Rim Ultra is one of the most hardcore, gruelling and spectacular runs in Australia," he said.

"If you want a flat and fast run, this isn't for you but if you are up for 4000 metres-plus of elevation, punishing mountain climbs, relentless ridgelines, technical downhill and some of the most gob-smacking scenery in Queensland, then you are in for the adventure of a lifetime.."

Mr Bonney said there were four distances to choose from 25 kilometres to 35, 65 or the full 105 kilometre challenge.

"This is our fifth year running this event and it's going to be a great race," he said.

Competitors in last year's Scenic Rim Ultra. Picture: SUPPLIED

"We have people coming from different parts of Australia as well as France, Japan, New Caledonia and New Zealand.

Mr Bonney said the Scenic Rim Ultra would begin at the paddock on Beaudesert Boonah Road, on the left before The Overflow Winery.

"Runners will traverse four mountains, the Dugandan Range, Wyaralong Dam and gnarly private trails not usually open to the public," he said.

Competitors will complete their allocated distance by returning to the Overflow Estate with prizes for those who stay the course, including cowboy hats for those who finish the 105 kilometre run. Find out more at ontheedgeevents.com.au/scenicrimultra

Answer to rusty problem

The solution to a devastating disease affecting Australian flora could be growing in a Jimboomba backyard.

A native guava tree (Rhodomytrus psidioides) that appears to be resistant to the invasive myrtle rust was recently found on a property that is part of Logan City Council's Land for Wildlife program.

The fast-spreading fungal disease has been observed on species of the Myrtaceae family including eucalyptus, lilly pilly, tea trees and bottle brushes.

The disease was detected in Australia in 2010 and now impacts more than 400 different types of plants by making them incapable of producing seeds, fruit or new growth.

The once-common native guava has been so severely impacted by myrtle rust that it is listed as 'Critically Endangered' by Queensland's Department of Environment and Science.

Council is now working with the Jimboomba landowner and experts from University of Queensland and the Queensland Government to determine if this particular plant is resistant to myrtle rust.

Genetic testing is being done and saplings propagated from seed and cuttings as part of rigorous research that hopes to find a breakthrough in the battle against myrtle rust.

The exciting discovery comes ahead of National Tree Day on Sunday, 30 July.

A number of events are planned across the region, including a free community tree-planting event at Crestmead Park.

Environment Chair Cr Jon Raven said the hope offered by researching the native guava in Jimboomba highlights the diversity and importance of the city's award-winning green canopy.

"There's still heaps of research to be done, but this scientific discovery highlights why it's so important to have our community involved in exploring and protecting the environment, especially in their own backyard," Cr Raven said.

The native guava tree (Rhodomytrus psidioides) in bloom.

"Sunday's National Tree Day event in Crestmead is a great opportunity for locals to play an active role in enhancing our natural environment by getting their hands dirty and planting some trees for future generations."

The native guava tree research not the first time Council has worked to save an endangered species.

The native gossia gonoclada was thought to be extinct until a healthy, flowering bush was found growing adjacent to the Albert River.

Council developed the 'Gossia gonoclada Recovery Plan 2019-2029' to help preserve and propagate the endangered plant, which has now been planted out in some Council parks and reserves.

The free community planting event to mark National Tree Day on Sunday, is at Crestmead Park in Gimlet Street from 8am to 10am.

Participants should wear closed footwear and bring along sun protection and drinking water. Plants, equipment and a sausage sizzle will be provided.

Registrations are not required. Further information can be found on the Logan City Council website.

YACC helping Emergency Services Cadets keep warm

By Larraine Sathicq

Beaudesert Emergency Services Cadets will receive new jumpers thanks to a generous donation from Beaudesert Youth and Community Centre.

Cadet coordinator Chloe Wilson said the YACC donation enabled them to order 15 new uniform jumpers for the troops.

"They're blue hoodies with the Emergency Services logo embroidered on them," she said.

"We have a new intake of five cadets starting this term and we had some more adult leaders come on board at the start of this year."

Ms Wilson said the cadets had made great strides in their training since the program started early last year.

"We've been invited by another cadet unit to join them at the Police Academy," she said.

"We're doing more police stuff with Senior Sergeant Ken Murray, he's been pretty good to us, and we're going to join up with QAS to do some stuff at the ambulance station."

Ms Wilson said the year so far had seen the cadets engaged in a variety of emergency service training.

'This last fortnight they went out to the Woodhill rural shed and they learned about hazard reduction burns and why we do them," she said.

"They got to burn a pile the rural firies made up for them and they learned about the tools the rurals use and then they got to put out the fire."

Ms Wilson said the Beaudesert unit was also planning another visit to the fire academy.

The ambassadors' gala

By Larraine Sathicq

With the Beaudesert Show on the horizon, this year's show ambassadors were named at an afternoon tea at the showgrounds on 29 July.

Ella Bischoff was crowned 2023 Showgirl with Tiffany Chase named runner-up.

The 2023 Rural Ambassador award was taken out by Sarah Thorpe.

After lengthy deliberation by the judges, Kieran Cahill was named the Junior Show Ambassador and Alex Buchanan was announced as runner-up.

The winners, runner-up and entrants in each category will be out and about at a number of community events across the Scenic Rim, as well as taking part at the official proceedings of the Beaudesert Show on 8 and 9 September.

Show Ambassador Coordinator Tim Andrews said the event saw record numbers attending, including Show Society President, Ian Harrison accompanied by executive and management committee members.

Also in attendance were federal MP Scott Buchholz, Scenic Rim state MP Jon Krause, Deputy Mayor Jeff McConnell and Cr Virginia West, along with Show Ambassador alumni, community members and the families of the entrants, with music provided by local music duo, Josh and Maya.

Silver Show sponsors Franklin Constructions were acknowledged for their continued support, as were prize sponsors and supporters including Beaudesert Newsagent, Specsavers Beaudesert, Backroads Beaudesert, Leon and Gaye Blank and the Veraart Family of Jimboomba.

The Beaudesert Show Society said the Ambassador movement aimed to recognise and promote the key role the next generation will play in the rural workforce and agricultural show movement and their contributions in sustaining rural and regional communities.

Mr Andrews said the high calibre of all entrants in this year's competition made the judges task exceptionally hard.

Making history as the first male to enter and place in the competition since guidelines were changed four years ago was 13-year-old Beaudesert State High School student Alex Buchanan.

"I only got involved with the Beaudesert Show last year, showing cattle with my school," Alex said.

Although nervous, the lad put his best foot forward showing confidence beyond his years, answering questions during the judging phase and happily mingling with the crowd.

Ambassador entrants were Sarah Thorpe and Tiffany Chase and junior ambassador entrants were Poppi Edwards, Georgia Tilley, Kieren Cahill, Alex Buchanan, Layne Addy, Elizabeth Scott and Sophie Ward.

Beaudesert educator shapes students for the future

McAuley College educator Cathy Hunt wants to ensure students from rural schools can powerfully contribute to their local communities.

The Curriculum Leader said her students were learning the skills they need to thrive, locally and on a global scale.

Ms Hunt described her own learning journey into teaching digital technologies saying it began during her tenure as a Visual and Media Arts teacher earlier in her career.

"I discovered the immense creative potential of mobile devices and subsequently decided to teach myself to code, leading to me becoming an Apple Distinguished Educator, enhancing my own professional development and offering to my students," she said.

"By equipping students with these technical skills, we empower young minds to unlock their potential and contribute positively to their local communities."

McAuley College Principal Deidre Young commended Ms Hunt's drive and initiative helping McAuley College students have a "mindset for innovation."

"Cathy understands that developing digitally savvy students is crucial for their personal growth, educational attainment, and the overall development of their rural communities," Ms Young said.

"They can start their own businesses, contribute to economic growth, and drive positive change in their communities.

"Cathy not only fosters creativity and problem-solving but also ensures our students are ready for jobs of the future.

"Introducing coding education opens doors to a world of opportunities, empowering students with the tools to shape their futures and thrive in the digital age."

Head of Education Strategy, Policy and Innovation Marisa Dann said Ms Hunt's approach at McAuley College aligned with BCE's direction of enabling future-fit environments where students could connect and transform through critical and creative thinking.

"Our focus is on reimagining student voice, inquiry and collaboration so that our students are equipped with capabilities needed for their learning and wellbeing. Our leaders are empowered to deliver purposeful transformation, and our schools are future-focused at all times," she said.

New Logan park plans

If good things come in threes, then Logan City Council is certainly delivering with its latest exciting park upgrades.

Community input has been at the forefront of helping choose new facilities and features to create fun, engaging and accessible parks that cater for all the family.

Major upgrade works are now underway at Riverdale Park (Meadowbrook), Alexander Clark Park (Loganholme) and Mabel Park (Slacks Creek).

The upgrades are part of an unprecedented local parks development program that will continue into next year following a $63 million funding allocation in Council's 2023/24 Budget for the management, maintenance and upgrades of all City of Logan parks over the next 12 months.

Riverdale Park, Armstrong Road, Meadowbrook

Input from students from Loganlea High School is helping to shape a $2.5 million upgrade of Riverdale Park in Meadowbrook.

Students from the school's Year 9 Signature class were invited by Logan City Council Lifestyle Chair and Division 6 Councillor Tony Hall to be 'Councillors for a Day'.

Cr Hall was accompanied by Mayor Darren Power, Loganlea SHS principal Brenton Farleigh, and his Year 9 student in turning the first sod for the project which includes Division 6 Local Infrastructure Program funding.

"We engaged with local school students on what they would like in the park and the feedback was overwhelming for the new additions to have a dinosaur theme, so that's what we are going to do. I can't wait to see it finished later this year," Cr Hall said.

Alexander Clark Park, Dewar Drive, Loganholme

The first two stages of a $6.34 million upgrade are now underway and are expected to be completed in late November 2023, subject to suitable weather and construction conditions.

These include a feature play tower, water play equipment, flying fox, slides, swings, children's bike track, active sports area, park shelters, park furniture, shade sails and sensory garden.

Stage 3, which includes a new park entrance, additional parking and new boardwalks, is expected to completed in 2024 with two more stages to follow on a timeline yet to be finalised.

Other works will include an active sports area with basketball and volleyball courts, handball court, a multi-purpose open space, additional parking, a new toilet block and upgrades to existing walking tracks.

Division 10 Councillor Miriam Stemp also has helped turn the first sod on a $6.34 million tagged upgrade at Alexander Clark Park in Dewar Drive at Loganholme. The project includes Division 10 Local Infrastructure Program funding.

Division 3 Cr Mindy Russell and students Kamb Baker and Tayla Medew.

"These works will cement Alexander Clark Park's reputation as one of the best multi-use parks in the city with something for everyone irrespective of your age. Once finished it will be a perfect location for a family day out," Cr Stemp said.

Mabel Park, Paradise Road, Slacks Creek

Works began last week on a $1.8 million upgrade to the existing playground upgrade with a large bespoke play tower and new shade sails to be installed.

New nature play elements include small waterplay components such as misters and water pumps along with balancing logs and stepping stones.

Other additions will include a junior bike skills track, new fitness station, new seating and shelters. The dog off-leash area will also be upgraded.

Division 3 Councillor Mindy Russell was joined local primary and secondary students to turn the first sod on the upgrade on Wednesday, July 19. The project includes Division 3 Local Infrastructure Program funding.

"Slacks Creek is booming as a suburb and this park upgrade is a terrific investment that will provide facilities to help nurture the minds and bodies of the many young people in the neighbourhood who use Mabel Park regularly," Cr Russell said.

Changing guard at CWA

By Larraine Sathicq

The Country Women's Association of Queensland Beaudesert branch welcomed a new executive committee at the 98th annual general meeting on 27 July.

Meeting at the CWA hall on Brisbane Street members were joined by representatives of local government and community groups. Linda Lynch was voted in as president with Dinah Buchanan named vice president, Dell Eisentrager secretary and Lyn McKechnie treasurer.

Cheri Crawford accepted the role of hall convenor, Florence Retchlag as Facebook moderator, Lynette Bruce as cooking convenor and Bernie Grodecki taking on the role of floral art convenor. Outgoing president Bev Fehlberg, who has stepped down after four years in the role, delivered her final annual report outlining the CWA's achievements over the past 12 months.

"I am so glad that the members of the branch have been so supportive and caring," she said. "A bond of friendship has developed as we help each other through family crises and sickness and birth of grandchildren and great grandchildren. "The willingness to hold a market stall or have a function to raise money for the community has been no effort for our members, with 10,000 volunteer hours this year, our ladies have knitted, crocheted and sewn articles to donate to the needy."

Other activities included supporting Beaucare for a homeless shower unit, providing toys for local medical centres, backpacks and comfort bags for schoolchildren and items for three aged care facilities. The CWA ladies also made jumpers for penguins, possum bags, snake bags, dog beds and blankets.

Ms Fehlberg presented donations to several community groups including the Rural Doctors Foundation, Wongaburra, Beaucare, Now Church, Gleneagle State School, Tracey's Pantry and Beaudesert State School.

Several also addressed the gathering, congratulating the CWA for its contribution to the community and thanking them for their support.

Ninjas take on Flagstone

By Larraine Sathicq

Latitude Park at Flagstone attracted 300 families to the launch of a new Ninja Warrior inspired facility on Saturday 22 July.

The park is the creation of property developer Peet, spread over ten hectares of existing parklands in the area.

In a statement released to the media, Peet said the facility was designed for "aspiring Ninja Warriors aged 13 and up".

The seven obstacle features were inspired by the popular television show Australian Ninja Warrior..

Ninja Warrior athletes and Logan-Beaudesert locals, Emma and Kobe Teede were at the launch,, demonstrating the equipment and offering tips to aspiring athletes.

The pair then took to the course to test their skills against locals in the inaugural Flagstone Ninja Pro competition, where Trent Kozlowski and Kobe Teede were crowned the winners.

Flagstone Project Director, Troy Thompson, said the new park and Flagstone Ninja Pro competition demonstrated Peet's commitment to delivering both the community and wider region with world-class amenities.

"It was great to see so many people giving the course a go and enjoying the fun, skill, and community spirit. It's a real showcase of what makes Flagstone the great community it is," he said.

The Flagstone Ninja Pro competition saw locals compete across four categories including the double turbo challenge, a jump pod set, over under bars, a double overhead ladder, a balance beam, combi steps, a square pull-up station and a vertical net, all designed to test users' agility, balance, coordination, and speed.

Latitude Park also includes children's sensory equipment, a shaded play area, barbecues, tables, and benches.

Australian Ninja Warrior athlete, Emma Teede, hopes to see the Flagstone Ninja Pro continue as a standalone event over the coming years.

The Ninja Warrior inspired park was a hit with local families. Pictures: SUPPLIED

The obstacle course tests speed, agility and strength.

Latitude Park opened to the public on 22 July.

"The Flagstone Ninja Pro competition is a great initiative – the more people who can get outside, get fit and create that sense of community amongst both the sport and the region, the better," she said.

"We want to see the sport gain visibility and become part of the Olympics. The push for that begins here at a grassroots level. Facilities like Latitude Park help to lift the profile and exposure to our sport giving the young and young-at-heart a place to test their skills and learn more about obstacle sports"

Teede said it was inspiring to think future athletes could be using the Latitude Park course today.

"Encouraging this enthusiasm within the community is so important, especially as obstacle sports grow in popularity and professional recognition" she said.

As the president of Obstacle Australia, Teede said she was leading the campaign to introduce obstacle sports as part of a new-look modern pentathlon event at the Olympics.

Both Emma and Kobe Teede are set to set to fly out to Belgium to compete at the OCR World Championships in September.

Adam Beswick, from Steel Building Solutions Beaudesert is also flying to Belgium to compete in the 60+ age category. Located between Brisbane and the Gold Coast, Flagstone is one of the fastest growing developments in the region, attracting over 20 new families each month due to the development's focus on community, amenities, and outdoor lifestyle.

Tip shop has new hours

New operating hours will apply at the Logan Recycling Market from Friday, 18 August.

The market, at Logan City Council's Browns Plains Waste and Recycling Facility, is one of the most popular of its kind in South East Queensland.

The new hours will ensure the public is best-served on days and during operating times which historically have proven most popular – Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The market will no longer open on Mondays.

The new hours are:

- Friday: 10am to 3pm
- Saturday: 10am to 3pm
- Sunday: 10am to 3pm

Waste and Resource Recovery Chair, Councillor Jon Raven said the operating times had been adjusted after a review of customer visitation and activity at the market. Admission is still free.

"We know everyone loves to come to the Logan Recycling Market to get a bargain and that's why there are often long lines to be first in on Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays," Cr Raven said.

"These new hours will help peak times run smoothly and make sure we recycle more items than ever."

The new hours will also provide opportunities for staff and resources to be assigned to the customer recycling materials drop-off shed and green waste drop-off areas.

City of Logan ratepayers get four free tipping vouchers annually.

Residential green waste (garden vegetation only) can be dumped for free at all Council waste facilities.

When no free voucher is presented, fees for domestic waste loads are:

- Small (up to 240 litres – similar to a full wheelie bin): $10
- Medium (up to 1 cubic metre – a full sedan boot or utility tray): $19
- Large (up to 2 cubic metres – a full trailer or full utility): $30

Fees for commercial general waste vary across general and green waste, load size and those facilities with a weighbridge (Browns Plains and Carbrook) and non-weighbridge sites (Greenbank, Logan Village and Beenleigh).

"If you don't have a voucher, please make sure you sort your load into piles of recycling materials, green waste and landfill rubbish, so you are only charged for waste that goes to landfill," Cr Raven said.

R U OK? CEO Katherine Newton shares the importance of genuine, meaningful conversations. Pictures: SUPPLIED

R U OK? Day 2023 is calling on Australians to let the people they care about know; 'I'm here to hear', every day of the year.

'I'm here to hear' is the new message for R U OK, 2023

By Sofia Matthews

Two months out from R U OK? Day , organisers are calling on Australians to let the people they care about know; 'I'm here to hear', every day of the year.

R U OK? research has underscored the impact a genuine conversation can have on someone who is struggling with life.

The research found more than four in five people who engaged in a meaningful conversation felt better about managing their situation having talked it through and felt supported, heard, and safe during the conversation.

However, the research also found that when asked if they were OK, two in five people (38 per cent) who said they were OK, actually were not OK.

R U OK? Chief Executive Officer Katherine Newton said you need to ask this question because you mean it – make space to listen, and let the person know you're sticking around for whatever comes next.

"We know the positive impact an R U OK? conversation have when people know and trust each other," she said.

"This usually means that trust has been built over time, they're familiar with each other's routines and behaviours, and they likely know what's going on in each other's lives. This trust, along with consideration of the where and when a conversation will take place, contributes to making an R U OK? conversation truly meaningful."

Suicide Prevention Australia's June 2023 Community Tracker revealed two in five Australians know someone who has died or attempted suicide in the last 12 months, a 13%; increase from 2021. For the fourth quarter running, cost-of-living and personal debt remained the number one issue driving distress.

"In recent years there has been a lot for Australians to deal with. Many are still feeling the impact of natural disasters and the pandemic, while the cost-of-living increases are adding more stress on those who might already be struggling to manage," Ms Newton said.

"There is a natural tendency for us to want to move on as new events capture focus and we resume our usual routines.

"That's why it's important for us to recognise that the people we really care about may be feeling ongoing effects, long after something has happened to them, and to let them know we're still here to really hear."

R U OK? Community Ambassador, Anthony Gagliardi understands first-hand the importance of having an authentic conversation with someone close to you, who takes the time to take notice and really listen.

"Asking, 'are you OK?' in a genuine manner is so important to the outcome," said Mr Gagliardi who when struggling with the physical impact of an ongoing chronic back injury didn't realise the mental toll it was having on him until a friend spotted the signs that he might need support.

"It's about just being there, being able to listen, you're not trying to fix the problem, that's not the role," he said.

Mr Gagliardi's experience reinforces the need to show genuine interest and concern when you ask someone, 'are you OK?' to encourage a meaningful conversation.

Boonah's top cop urges drivers - update licences

By Larraine Sathicq

Boonah police station officer-in-charge Peter Boyce has congratulated locals after a quiet couple of weeks for police in the Fassifern.

"We are very fortunate to live in the Fassifern and enjoy the low criminal and public order environment of our communities, he said.

"Daily, media outlets report on the significant issues impacting neighbouring communities. To maintain the standard of safety within our community, we all need to be vigilant and work together to preserve the values that make the Fassifern a great place to live and work."

Results of a Fassifern Police traffic operation with Ipswich District Highway Patrol Officers last week was less heartening.

"It is disappointing to report there were several offenders issued notices to appear before court for offences (eight drug driving, two drink driving, two disqualified driving, four unlicensed driving), one defective vehicle, three unregistered/ uninsured vehicles and 56 infringement notices," Sergeant Boyce said.

"Many of these offenders live locally."

Sergeant Boyce highlighted a continual issue he said could have serious consequences.

"Several of the infringements were issued to persons who have not updated their address with Transport and Main Roads or updated vehicle owner details with TMR within 14 days," he said.

"Updating both of these are extremely important in today's electronic and photographic infringements times."

Sergeant Boyce said drivers were required to report changes to drivers license or vehicle ownership to TMR within 14 days.

"Those who have received another person's infringement notice will fully appreciate the documents, run around and hassle to have the infringement removed from your name and reissued to the correct person."

Sergeant Boyce said it was important to keep your address updated with TMR too.

"Any vehicle registration, drivers' license or enforcement actioned mailed to you at that address is considered served for the purpose of court and SPER proceedings and unfortunately may result in your license and/or motor vehicle registration being cancelled without your knowledge or opportunity to defend the matter," he said.

"Please ensure car ownership details and your residential details are kept up to date with TMR to avoid any nasty surprises."

Rural Matters

Farm debt sets a record

By Sofia Matthews

The latest agricultural lending statistics provided by the Australian Prudential Regulatory Authority (APRA) show an increase in aggregate lending to the farm sector of nine per cent in 2021-22.

Australian Bureau of Agricultural and Resource Economics and Sciences (ABARES) Executive Director Dr Jared Greenville said the cumulative value of loans outstanding has increased from $100.7 billion at 30 June 2021 to $109.0 billion at 30 June 2022.

"The data also shows lending to the farm sector since 2016-17 has increased at an accelerating rate each year," Dr Greenville said.

Dr Greenville said for broadacre and dairy farms – which collectively accounted for around 68 per cent of the value of farm output in 2021-22 – the two main reasons for borrowing had been to fund land purchases and for working capital.

"Analysis of ABARES farm survey data shows that much of this increase in borrowing has been for on-farm investment, particularly land purchases. Debt finance is of critical importance, both to fund new investment and manage variability in revenue and profit," he said.

"Rising land prices and low interest rates until recently have provided farmers with greater equity to support increased borrowings, while historically high farm incomes in most agricultural industries have substantially improved farmers ability to service debt.

The cumulative value of loans outstanding has increased from $100.7 billion at 30 June 2021 to $109.0 billion at 30 June 2022. Picture: UNSPLASH

"Up to the end of 2022, the average proportion of farm cash income consumed by interest payments had trended down in recent years due to higher farm incomes and lower interest rates. In 2021-22, the average proportion of income consumed by interest payments was 8 per cent for broadacre and dairy farms – an historical low. However, this proportion is likely to have increased since as a result of recent increases in interest rates.

"The impact of higher interest rates will be felt by some farms more than others. Those farms with relatively high debt servicing burdens will be most susceptible to interest rate increases, if this were combined with a downturn in farm cash income it would impact their ability to service debt."

Counting the environmental impact of methane Vs CO2

Cattle Australia has welcomed Oxford University Physicist Myles Allen to Australia to address the oversimplified accounting of methane emissions versus CO2

Professor Allen was the architect of the GWP* metric that was specifically designed to accurately account for the warming impact of short-lived gasses, such as methane deriving from livestock.

Cattle Australia CEO Luke Bowen thanked Professor Allen for meeting with industry, journalists and policymakers at Hotel Kurrajong in Canberra.

"Professor Allen has clearly demonstrated why we need to look at methane emissions more closely," Mr Bowen said.

"Beef emissions are dynamic and shouldn't be measured the same way as CO2.

"Short-lived gasses, such as methane, do not have a warming legacy, whereas CO2 lasts thousands of years.

"When the short lifespan of livestock methane is taken into account, you find an industry's gases stop contributing to warming after 12 years if your herd size is constant.

Methane produced from livestock doesn't have a permanent impact on the climate. Picture: CONTRIBUTED

Mr Bowen also said Professor Allen's research also uncovered the important factor, that when w e cut methane emissions, we reverse our warming impact, something that does not apply to CO2.

"Being part of a natural cycle means the carbon in our emissions goes back into growing the grass and vegetation which sustains our cattle, the natural environment," said Mr Bowen.

"Professor Allen has undertaken a significant analysis of these dynamics to develop a metric that fairly represents the impact methane has on warming.

"It's important to note Professor Allen is an advocate for good science and not an advocate for livestock industries.

"At the same time, our policy settings must be based on the best available science, so our efforts have the most impact.

Mr Bowen said it is time Australia recognised the true warming impact of the grass-fed beef industry, which will be neutral by 2026, well before net zero is achieved.

"Taking the time to understand the climate contribution of the beef industry will put us in a position to take meaningful climate action."

What to do when Johnson grass is herbicide resistant

By Paul McIntosh

Let's talk Johnson Grass, a terrific livestock feed during drought times, but as we all recognise, a weed or undesirable plant in cropping paddocks.

Now Johnson Grass from Central QLD has tested positive to Glyphosate resistance, not surprising considering the amount of Glyphosate applied to this perennial grass plant over the preceding decades.

One mechanism of Herbicide Resistance not spoken much is Reduced Cell Uptake or Reduced Adsorption and it can occur in Johnson Grass and it is generally categorised as a Non Target Site mechanism of resistance.

Even on our family farm in the late 1970's, my father Alec sprayed a heap of Johnson grass in a future Lucerne paddock.

He must have used a robust rate of Glyphosate shall we say, as that block was clear of JG for months to come and the new Lucerne germinated and established well.

Johnson Grass has tested positive for herbicide resistance in Central QLD. Picture: CONTRIBUTED

To be effective herbicides must be adsorbed through the roots for residual herbicides or leaves for foliar applied products.

Researchers have absolved any resistance due to reduced root adsorption at this stage, however foliar adsorption with differences of cuticle thickness, leaf trichomes and hairs can have a negative effect on adsorption.

Leaf Trichomes on plants are epidermal outgrowths of various kinds like hairs or shield like plates that grow on pineapples or bromeliads ,which have these various protrusions from leaf surfaces.

Decreased adsorption resistance is not a common Non Target Site Resistance mechanism, however Wild Sunflower, Annual Bluegrass, Annual Ryegrass, Prickly Lettuce and now Johnson Grass have been reported around the world with this mechanism.

With wide spread use of herbicides in our Australian Cropping scene for the last 60 odd years, we are now experiencing an evolution of Herbicide Resistance.

Certainly we need to mix and rotate our crops and herbicide mode of actions, however it takes more than that for long term future weed control.

I have adopted the Weedsmart Big 6 and Area Wide Management of Weeds constantly over the last 8 years in this industry role and with over 4 decades in providing Agronomy advice on weed control behind me, I am absolutely certain that our weed control practices using herbicides alone need to change.

The challenge for you all reading this article is are you prepared to adopt the Weedsmart Big 6 approach and stop weeds from setting seed in paddocks and in those other non-cropping areas of your property.

Twelve years - no compo

Twelve years on and there has still been no compensation for the hundreds of businesses and people impacted by the 2011 live export ban on Northern Australian cattle producers, which almost destroyed the industry and the livelihoods of thousands of hard-working Australians and their families.

Leader of The Nationals David Littleproud has called on the Federal Labor Government to end 12 years of anguish for the cattle producers impacted by the live export ban of 2011 and reach an appropriate settlement.

The call comes after the government's most recent settlement offer of $215 million in damages was denounced by industry bodies such as Cattle Australia, which believes the figure doesn't come close to the $1.2 billion in losses it estimates were suffered because of the ban.

Mr Littleproud said the time had come for the Labor Government to acknowledge the hurt the ban caused and reach an appropriate settlement.

"Frankly, I think this latest offer is insulting to all of those producers whose livelihoods were rocked by the 2011 live cattle export bans," Mr Littleproud said.

"It is high time the government stood up and accepted responsibility for the hurt this ban caused all those years ago.

"The fact we are now 12 years removed from those bans and there has still not been an appropriate settlement is shameful."

It is understood the negotiations between the government and those impacted by the ban will come before the courts later this year, however, Mr Littleproud said he would like to see a resolution before then.

"This government needs to right this wrong and find a suitable outcome before this case returns to the courtroom," Mr Littleproud said.

"Returning to the courts only stands to cost the taxpayers even more, so I call on the Labor Government to end this saga after 12 long years."

It is predicted the live export ban in 2011 cost the Northern cattle industry $1.2b. Picture: CONTRIBUTED

Member for Maranoa, David Littleproud.

In 2011, the then-Labour Government imposed a snap live export ban on cattle to Indonesia after the ABC's Four Corners program released aired an episode on cattle mistreatment in Indonesia, detrimentally impacting the Northern Australian cattle industry.

In 2020, after a six year long court battle, the Federal Court ruled the ban was illegal, irrational and unreasonable and that compensation was to be paid to cattle producers involved in the initial claim, supposedly around $600 million.

However, three years after the judgement and 12 years on from the ban, no money has been seen and the now-Labour government has offered a settlement of only $215 million, nearly a billion dollars less than the estimated impact and an insult to the cattle farmers who lots their livelihoods, homes and lives.

HOROSCOPE by Lilith

Your year ahead

This week's planetary pairings of Sun/Venus in Leo and Mars/Mercury in Virgo all combine to deliver the same message: declutter, downsize and lighten up your life. Delete, donate, give away, shred, recycle. You'll feel clearer with every closet you clean out. Hold on to the best and let go of the rest...

ARIES
(Mar 21 - Apr 20)

Your planet ruler, Mars, in the practical sign of healthy habits, encourages an organized, orderly environment. So, it's worth devoting time to ditching old papers and files, curating your digital environment, upgrading your storage systems and pruning your inbox to make your whole world feel lighter and clearer.

Best day: Sunday 6 August

TAURUS
(Apr 21 - May 20)

There's zero use engaging with the current dummy spits and tantrums. If you find yourself walking on eggshells, call time out. Fly under the radar, don't log into disputes. There's way less drama in dressing up, going out, and having fun enjoying the flip side of this week: its entertaining and playful vibes.

Best day: Tuesday 8 August

GEMINI
(May 21 - Jun 21)

Industrious Mars in your domestic sector can stimulate the urge to spruce up your space. To finally start those necessary repairs or improvements to chez Gemini you keep putting off. Once you get going, Mars will generate plenty of momentum and, hey, could that spare room be turned into an income earner?

Best day: Thursday 10 August

CANCER
(Jun 22 - Jul 22)

For Cancers, familiarity breeds contentment. But action planet Mars stirring up ferment in your social zone encourages widening the radius of your inner circle to allow new friends in. So, keep an open mind, because during this creative cycle it's possible a lucrative collaboration could spark from an unexpected direction.

Best day: Saturday 12 August

LEO
(Jul 23 - Aug 23)

Makeover magic is in the air for your royals' frisky, flirty birthday month, so have fun playing with some spritzy new stylings. Your majesties are natural-born leaders, so even if you're the more retiring kind of Lion (are there any?), this star-powered cycle is not the time to be holding back on self-promotion.

Best day: Monday 7 August

LIBRA
(Sep 23 - Oct 23)

Energetic Mars in your introspective zone of endings and transitions may offer a sign this week that you're ready to let something go. If you feel wired and tired at the same time, know that it's just a change in velocity as you process the emotions of moving from one cycle into another.

Best day: Friday 11 August

VIRGO
(Aug 24 - Sep 22)

With magnetic Mars in the house - your house - if you have an idea to pitch or product to sell, consider taking it to a larger platform. The downside of hosting the red planet is going into overdrive: excitable, impatient, even argumentative. In which case, it's good to get physical: at the gym, going for a run, whatever...

Best day: Wednesday 9 August

SCORPIO
(Oct 24 - Nov 22)

It's no secret this dramatic month is known for exhibiting narcissistic tendencies. But certain things just aren't worth your energy, so conserve that by avoiding tantrum-throwing tinderboxes and superfluous histrionics. Try to rein in the tendency to abruptly cut the cord with someone, as you can do when you're annoyed.

Best day: Sunday 6 August

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov 23 - Dec 21)

The current denser than usual planetary pace has its own kind of silver lining, which is opening up access to hidden windows of opportunity for developing a new venture or taking a current one to potentially more successful levels. So, stay alert and plan with the best intentions this week, but expect the unexpected.

Best day: Monday 7 August

CAPRICORN
(Dec 22 - Jan 20)

Once you extend that Capricorn ambition past the personal to include the communal, there's no end to positive change you can achieve in your environment. Whether sharing a cause or spearheading a community project this week, you have the charisma, determination and strategic mindset to make a lasting impact.

Best day: Wednesday 9 August

AQUARIUS
(Jan 21 - Feb 18)

Being an Aquarian is about belonging rather than fitting in, and one of your personal superpowers is the ability to celebrate individuality and togetherness simultaneously. However you do that, this week says: ready, set, go viral. And if you're feeling any call at all to leadership, your August starmap offers a launch pad.

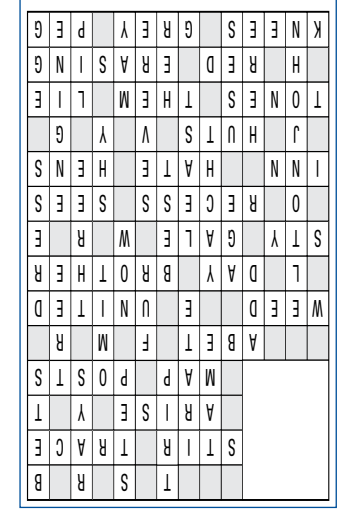

Best day: Friday 11 August

PISCES
(Feb 19 - Mar 20)

With agitator Mars in your partnership zone, certain people in your life may become overly demanding, and this week suggests you establish boundaries to create more space if you're feeling pressured. Use the positive aspect of Mars' direct approach to ask clearly for what you need - and what you don't.

Best day: Saturday 12 August

Eat your heart out

Poh Ling Yeow and Adam Liaw go in search of our national dish in SBS Food travelogue Great Australian Bites

Toast of the town: Poh Ling Yeow and Adam Liaw hit the road to find Australia's culinary delights in Great Australian Bites.

Our favourite feasts

MasterChef stars Poh Ling Yeow and Adam Liaw cross the country in search of the nation's greatest cuisine in Adam & Poh's Great Australian Bites. Siobhan Duck chats to the dynamic duo about what it's like travelling together and the delicious discoveries they made along the way

THE most successful road trips often feature the same common ingredients: great company, a plentiful supply of tasty snacks and at least one epic singalong.

When Adam Liaw and Poh Ling Yeow hit the open road together for their latest travel series, they managed two of the three staples.

Ling Yeow laughs that her attempts to initiate some harmonising to the odd jazz tune fell on deaf ears with Liaw while they were filming Adam & Poh's Great Australian Bites.

"I will sing in the car – just not with other people," Liaw explains of his reticence to duet with Ling Yeow on the open road.

"I sing in the car quite a lot. I am the guy that you pull up next to at the traffic lights and see singing their heart out in the car next to you. I am very happy to be that guy, just not with anybody else."

This is the second time that the two MasterChef favourites have hosted a culinary travel show together.

"The last show that we made together (Adam & Poh's Malaysia in Australia) was kind of fractured though, because of COVID," Ling Yeow explains.

"We shot separately, and it was more an illusion of us being together a lot more than we were. This one we were properly together.

"We were in the car together for hours. And I loved getting to really know him."

A natural homebody who frets about leaving her beloved pets and plants when she travels, Ling Yeow says the more seasoned travel show veteran Liaw wasn't the cool, calm and collected car companion she had expected.

Taste of the nation: Poh Ying Leow and Adam Liaw sample meat pies.

"I used to think we were like oil and water we were so different," she says.

"But I will tell you a little secret, he's actually quite chaotic. We would swap who was chaotic and who was orderly. I think it was an instinctual thing that we couldn't both be in chaos at the same time.

"So, yes he's very calm and controlled in front of the camera but he can be quite chaotic in the way he gets to things and that's because he has so much on his plate."

Liaw is certainly one of the busiest men on TV. In addition to shooting Great Australian Bites, he also fronts The Cook Up and hosted a segment of the documentary series Who the Bloody Hell Are We? for SBS this year.

"He's very ambitious because he wants to give his kids – and even his grandkids – a good life [by working hard]," Ling Yeow says.

While the pair are both known for their passion for good food, Ling Yeow says neither are food snobs, which meant they were happy to eat the occasional service station pie or sausage roll.

They also found joy in small-town Chinese restaurants; appreciating that the menus were often a 1980s time capsule that took them back to their childhoods.

"We are both quite happy to give everything a taste," Ling Yeow says.

"And it's quite fun because even though it is lowbrow food, we accept it for what it is and it's quite nostalgic a lot of the time because it's stuff that you remember eating as a kid or that represents Australia that's caught in an era.

"So, we're celebrating it for what it is and not being food snobs at all about it. So, that in itself is quite freeing in a way and really fun."

The pair even found a way to turn some of their least-fancy dining experiences into a game.

"When we were really out in Woop Woop, it was just whatever we could find," she says of eating at truck stops and roadside diners.

"But occasionally if we passed a town that had an Asian grocer we would load up on snacks. It was quite hilarious actually because then we would review every snack."

A travel show veteran who has filmed his Destination Flavour series in places such as China, Japan and Scandinavia, Liaw relished exploring more of his own backyard on Great Australian Bites.

"Both Poh and I wanted to do a food show that was relatable," he says.

"We know that if you go on a road trip you stop at a bakery and get a vanilla slice. We know that if there's one pasta dish that people know how to make, it's spaghetti bolognese. We know that a lot of people love a lamb roast and it's something that they would have every Sunday night.

"We just wanted to make a show – and I haven't seen it before – and that's a show that celebrates these things that we already knew about Australian food."

At the same time, this series also took Liaw into some uncharted territory – both as a traveller and a diner.

He found a visit to Kakadu (where he sampled fresh ingredients that were native to the region) particularly inspiring and plans to take his family to experience its beauty too.

From the south-eastern Asian influences in Australia's far north to a predictable pub counter meal, the beauty of travelling the country was that it allowed Liaw and Ling Yeow to showcase the full spectrum of flavours we have on home soil.

"We do have a really broad difference of Australian food from state to state and from place to place," Liaw enthuses.

"And so, Chinese Australian food in Victoria is not the same as Chinese Australian food in South Australia.

"There are these enormous differences in the food that we eat and the way that we call things different names."

This is typified best by the longstanding debate over what we call a fish and chip shop favourite. To Victorians it's a potato cake, while those in New South Wales are adamant they are potato scallops.

Liaw refuses to wade into that food war.

"As South Australians we tend to just stay quiet and leave that fight to Victoria and New South Wales," he laughs.

"I think we probably just call them potato fritters. That's one of those differences. But what I will say, is that in South Australia we say 'parmy' and not 'parma' [as an abbreviation for chicken parmigiana].

"And that is something I am very clear on!"

PICK OF THE WEEK

Music man: Daniel Radcliffe as "Weird Al" Yankovic.

Saturday

WEIRD: THE AL YANKOVIC STORY
10, 8pm, M (2022)

Anyone old enough to remember Michael Jackson at the peak of his fame will also remember "Weird Al" Yankovic, whose comedy versions of MJ's hits were almost as big as the songs themselves. This biographical parody film tells the outrageously untrue story of a "misfit kid" who learned he had the power to twist popular lyrics to become a top-selling artist in his own right – for example, turning The Knack's "My Sharona" into "My Bologna", an ode to his sandwich. In the titular role, Daniel Radcliffe shows off some impressive comedic chops, while Evan Rachel Wood amuses as a madcap version of Madonna with her heart set on Yankovic parodying "Like a Virgin". It's wildly silly in parts, but its stellar take on the biopic genre is nothing less than we'd expect from a comic genius like Yankovic, who co-wrote the screenplay. Very weird, but very watchable. ★★★★

FINDING DORY
7Flix, Friday, 6.35pm, G (2016)

Set a year after the misadventures of Finding Nemo, friendly blue regal tang Dory (pictured, voiced by Ellen DeGeneres) and her friends Nemo (Hayden Rolence) and Marlin (Albert Brooks) embark on a search to find Dory's parents. The trio have their work cut out for them as Dory's terrible memory hampers their mission. Awash with colour, humour, and with a touching theme on the importance of family, it's swimmingly great. Finding Dory perfectly complements the original. ★★★★

THE IMITATION GAME
9Gem, Sunday, 8.30pm, M (2014)

Set in the 1950s, this biopic is an intense and haunting portrayal of a complicated man. Cryptanalyst Alan Turing (Benedict Cumberbatch, pictured) is arrested for the criminal offence of homosexuality, but little did the authorities know they were incriminating the pioneer of modern-day computing. Turing was credited with cracking the so-called unbreakable codes of Germany's World War II Enigma machine, helping to shorten the war and save thousands of lives. ★★★★★

GET SMART
Nickelodeon, Monday, 8.30pm, PG (2008)

In the film version of the classic '60s comedy series, Steve Carell slips on the phone-equipped shoes of Don Adams as Agent 86 – the CONTROL-deployed, idiotic spy struggling to keep the world safe from the evil KAOS, though not without a great deal of help from trusty partner 99 (Anne Hathaway, pictured with Carell). It's obvious everyone involved – including Dwayne Johnson, Bill Murray, Alan Arkin and Terence Stamp – has a tongue firmly in cheek and is not afraid of a little self-deprecation. ★★★

THE GREATEST SHOWMAN
Seven, Friday, 8.30pm, PG (2017)

There is no end of colour and spectacle in this musical romp through 1850s America and the rise of the self-proclaimed inventor of showbusiness, P.T. Barnum. Hugh Jackman (pictured) embodies the never-ending grit and determination of Barnum, an entertainment visionary and supporter of those on the fringes of society who was famed for bringing 'human curiosities' into the spotlight. Michael Gracey's directorial debut boasts a stellar cast with Jackman, Zac Efron, Michelle Williams and Zendaya all proving their singing, acting and dancing talents. This is a film full of heart that celebrates self-acceptance, fearless abandon and choosing the life you want to lead. ★★★★

SICARIO
Nine, Saturday, 9.50pm, MA15+ (2015)

An insightful film about the so-called "War on Drugs" that examines the drug trade with forensic intensity. Emily Blunt (pictured) heads a great cast as Kate Macer, an idealistic FBI agent who is recruited by mysterious figure Matt Graver (Josh Brolin) to lead an off-the-books operation in Mexico. The target is an as-yet unknown cartel boss. Kate's journey into Mexico is startling – every moment she's confronted by corruption and the grisly evidence of drug-fuelled violence and death. ★★★★

BAD TEACHER
7Flix, Tuesday, 8.40pm, M (2011)

Anyone who has seen the brilliantly subversive Bad Santa will immediately have that film in mind after seeing the title of this Cameron Diaz (pictured) effort. Diaz lives up to the mantle in this daring comedy as disinterested and dislikable teacher Liz Halsey, who has her mind set on the breast implants she sees as her ticket to a rich husband and life of leisure. Liz's rivalry with the prim and proper Amy (Lucy Punch) intensifies when new teacher Scott (Justin Timberlake) falls for the latter. ★★★

The Guide

PICK OF THE WEEK

THE BLOCK
Nine, Sunday, 7pm

For the 19th season of this much-loved reno show, we're harking back to a golden age of housing. In the aptly named Charming Street in Melbourne's bayside suburb of Hampton East, the five 1950s, post-war brick homes evoke a sense of nostalgia for simpler times. After 13 years of following the harried and ambitious couples' renovating efforts, host Scott Cam (pictured with Shelley Craft) is arguably one of the most familiar faces on TV. This season though, there's a new expert in the mix: real estate guru Marty Fox, who is occasionally filling in for judge Neale Whitaker. The 12-week building slog kicks off tonight, with the five teams' mammoth task including the construction of a granny flat.

JAMES MARTIN'S FRENCH ADVENTURE
SBS Food, Friday, 6pm

Francophiles need no excuse to indulge in this picturesque foodie and travel sojourn, but the recent spectacle of the Tour de France – which showed off the glorious French countryside – is bound to have rustled up fresh viewers to this gastronomic refreshment. British chef James Martin (pictured) is our gregarious, wine-swilling travel partner as he savours the food and sights in picture-perfect locations. Tonight, the riverside town of L'Isle-sur-la-Sorgue is Martin's next haven and truffles are the hero of the menu. After sampling truffle-laden dishes at the famous restaurant La Beaugravière, Martin whips up a dish of scallops with tomatoes and chorizo.

BRITAIN'S MOST EXPENSIVE HOUSES
SBS, Monday, 8.40pm

If the cost of a humble packet of chips these days makes your eyes water, get set to be flabbergasted by how the other half lives. It's the second season of this posh British series following the dealings of UK Sotheby's International Realty, as the staff orchestrate sales with some of the richest people in the world. From a $30,000 light fitting to wallpaper that will set you back $3000 per roll, it's a surreal world of wealth and prestige where caviar is the preferred snack of choice. This week, estate agent Lee (pictured) has secured the listing for an abode overlooking Regent's Park with an asking price of £29 million (A$55 million), while Guy has a unique – and expensive – houseboat on his books.

THE HUNDRED WITH ANDY LEE
Nine, Tuesday, 8.40pm

Comedian Andy Lee (pictured) manages to make statistics the stuff of entertainment in this lively comedy panel show. Back for its fifth season, tune in to witness the spectacle of The Hundred's giant screen, which broadcasts the faces of the diverse crowd of participants as they field the panel's curious questions via Zoom. Featuring the laugh-out-loud observations and quips of stand-up star Mike Goldstein, everything from toilet habits, to pet names and comfort foods is fertile fodder. Behind the statistics lies a bounty of interesting and off-the-wall stories. Lee, who helped come up with the show's unique concept, is the epitome of the playful host.

Flower power: From left, Sigourney Weaver, Alycia Debnam-Carey, Asher Keddie and Leah Purcell star in The Lost Flowers of Alice Hart.

IN FULL BLOOM

THE LOST FLOWERS OF ALICE HART

Streaming from Friday, Prime Video

Haunting and beautiful, Aussie Holly Ringland's debut novel unsurprisingly blossomed into a worldwide bestseller when it hit the shelves. Now, her captivating tale's on-screen arrival is a cut above your standard garden variety.

Hollywood veteran Sigourney Weaver (Alien, Avatar) leads the stellar cast in this engrossing miniseries from the producers of the seductive thriller Big Little Lies. Esteemed writer Sarah Lambert (Lambs of God) is on board with Ringland, with polished direction from Glendyn Ivin (Safe Harbour), in this coming-of-age story that traverses the depths of human strength and the diverse Australian landscape.

Spanning across two decades, from fertile farmland, to red desert and the moody seaside, this spellbinding seven-episode drama follows the traumatic events surrounding nine-year-old Alice Hart (Ayla Browne). When her parents are killed in a mysterious fire, the young girl is sent to live with her tough, estranged grandmother June (Weaver) on her idyllic-looking flower farm.

Secrets and betrayals unfurl as a grown-up Alice (Alycia Debnam-Carey, Fear The Walking Dead) is forced to face her violent upbringing to find her inner strength.

Weaver is a powerhouse, with Offspring's Asher Keddie and Alexander England, along with Wentworth's Leah Purcell, rounding out the memorably excellent local cast.

Tune in for this evocative Australian story about transformation; it plants a seed close to the book's perfection. – Rebecca Balloch

HEARTSTOPPER

Streaming, Netflix

As if this British teen rom-com wasn't bursting with enough heart already, its second season is off to the city of love. Based on the graphic novels of Alice Oseman, it follows Charlie and Nick's (Joe Locke and Kit Connor, both pictured) relationship. Along with a school trip to Paris, Tao (William Gao) and Elle (Yasmin Finney) consider being more than just friends.

PHYSICAL

Streaming, Apple TV+

Its unique clash of unlikable characters, disquieting depiction of bulimia, and the glitzy '80s setting has been difficult to digest at times, but this dark comedy led by Aussie Rose Byrne (pictured) exits on a high. In its final season, troubled Sheila is set to crack the big time as a fitness guru, but she's unhinged by a new competitor in a Barbie-esque sitcom star.

TÁR

Streaming, Foxtel On Demand

Cate Blanchett (pictured) is hypnotic as a high-flying conductor in a role crafted specifically for her by writer-director Todd Field. Drenched in nuance and intensity, what starts out as a drama focused on the precision of classical music, and its fascinating titular character, evolves into a mysterious, foreboding psychological thriller exploring power.

GUARDIANS OF THE GALAXY VOL. 3

Streaming, Disney+

Director James Gunn sends his loveable band of eccentric superheroes into orbit with this emotional and humorous final hurrah. Leader Quill (Chris Pratt, pictured) steps to the sidelines as Rocket Raccon's (Bradley Cooper) origin story is explored. With a powerful soundtrack including tunes by Faith No More and Beastie Boys, it's a bittersweet ending.

NICKELODEON CHANNEL LAUNCH

Streaming, 10 Play

Kids and kids at heart rejoice: children's channel Nickelodeon has set up home on free-to-air and 10 Play for the first time in Australia. During the day, the treasure trove of fun includes hits such as SpongeBob SquarePants and PAW Patrol, as well as first-run episodes of The Smurfs, while the adult-friendly evening features Gogglebox UK and The Middle.

Everyday Food

Stuffed Capsicum

Serves: 8
Prep time: 15 minutes
Cook time: 1 ¼ hours

2 ½ serves per portion

Ingredients:
- 1-2 tablespoons canola oil
- 1 brown onion, diced
- 1 carrot, grated
- 2-3 cloves of garlic, minced
- 400g lean beef mince
- 1 vegetable stock cube, reduced salt
- Black pepper
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- ½ cup rice
- 8 capsicums (red or yellow), top cut off, deseeded
- 1 potato, chopped (optional)
- 1 can of whole tomatoes
- Parsley, chopped, to serve

Method:
- HEAT oil in frypan over medium heat.
- FRY onion in oil until soft and translucent, around 5 minutes. Add grated carrot and garlic and cook for a further 2-3 minutes.
- ADD mince and vegetable stock cube and season with pepper and paprika. Fry until cooked through. Add the rice, stir and set aside.
- ARRANGE the deseeded capsicum snuggly in a pot. Optional: use wedges of chopped potato to help prop up the capsicums. Distribute mince mixture evenly between the capsicums.
- POUR water into the pot, enough to reach halfway up the capsicums.
- SLICE the canned whole tomatoes in half and place on top of each capsicum as a lid. Roughly chop the remaining canned tomatoes and add to the water in the pot.
- COOK on medium-high heat until the water starts to boil. Reduce heat and simmer with lid on for 45 minutes on stove top. Preheat oven to 180°C.
- TRANSFER pot to the oven and bake with lid off until the tops of the capsicum get crispy (approx. 30 mins).
- TOP with fresh parsley and serve with toasted wholegrain bread.

Banana and Blueberry Bread

Serves: 10
Prep time: 10 minutes
Cook time: 60 minutes

½ serve per portion

Ingredients:
- 1 cup plain flour
- 1 cup wholemeal plain flour
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup olive-based margarine
- 2 eggs, beaten
- 2 cups overripe bananas, mashed (approx. 4-6 medium bananas)
- 1 cup frozen blueberries, defrosted

Method:
- PREHEAT oven to 175°C. Line a loaf tin with baking paper.
- COMBINE flour, baking soda and salt in a large bowl.
- CREAM margarine in a separate bowl. Stir in eggs and mashed banana until well blended.
- FOLD banana mixture and blueberries into flour mixture until just combined, making sure not to over stir.
- POUR batter into loaf tin and bake in oven for 60 minutes or until a skewer comes out clean.
- COOL in pan for 10 minutes and then turn onto a wire rack.

Dogs chew on Warriors

By Ben Nash

Round 14 of the Wyatt Cup Competition had the Scenic Ford Warriors head into the city to take on Wests Bulldogs, in what would be a battle for second place on the ladder.

With the Beaudesert side missing a few key positions and scrambling to find the best fit for a few players the Warriors knew it was going to be a tough one.

Not to shy away from a challenge though, the Warriors started strong, spending the first 10 minutes deep inside Wests half but a well drilled and disciplined defence had the Warriors come up empty handed.

Wests retaliated when they were given the ball, marching the Warriors back up the field scoring the first try of the match, leaving the Warriors down 7-nil.

The Warriors were keen to bounce back and level this game up but the Dogs had their tails wagging and were not letting the Warriors get back down their end.

The Dogs were determined to pile on the points. The Warriors' scramble defence was being tested, but it was holding.

A clearance kick from deep inside the Warriors 22 had Wests fullback in some space out the back and a keen eye for the corner.

The Warriors held them out for a couple of phases but ultimately they couldn't take the pressure anymore and the Dogs were in once again the corner, claiming 12-0 at half time.

In part two, Wests picked up where they left off and piled the pressure on the Warriors line.

The Beauy side held strong on the edges, not letting the dogs close but a lapse in concentration had the Doggies halfback scoot out the back of a ruck untouched, scoring under the posts. Warriors down 19-0.

Now it seemed the Warriors left their bag of tricks at home and while the Dogs were holding strong the Warriors were falling short.

Although the boys were digging deep at this point, holding onto the ball for substantial phases and looking like scoring, they just couldn't get it done.

The final score of 19-0 went the way of the Dogs in what would be the first scoreless game for the Warriors all year.

The Warriors now drop to third on the ladder and play host to Easts Tigers this coming Friday at Everdell Park.

A finals spot is secure for the Warriors, with the team looking to bounce back and get some momentum before the finals.

Kingies go out with a bang

By Charlie Gee

Beaudesert opens men took on North Stradbroke in an elimination final on the weekend.

Both teams finished fourth and fifth respectively and earnt their spot in finals.

Beaudesert started slow, and with a few incomplete sets early on Stradbroke would take advantage.

The first 20 minutes went Straddie's way, with incomplete sets and silly errors could have left Beaudesert looking at a 20-0 defecit just before half time.

However a rare attacking chance, and a slick backline movement allowed Callum grime to set Aaron Hughes up to go over just before half time.

Andrew Scougall would also crash over the set after to make it 20-10 at the half time interval.

Beaudesert knew they had to do the small things right to keep climbing back into the game, and after half time they did exactly that.

Jake Stephan was the next to cross over, bring the game to 20-16.

Stradbroke were out on their feet and Beaudesert could smell blood, the middle forwards were rolling us down the pitch, and the ball was swinging wide each side.

Dylan Haack would crashed over in the middle, but it would be unfortunately called back for a knock on.

With only 10 minutes left in the game, and countless sets back and forth, hunter Garnett would get the much needed break through on the right edge, bringing the game to 20-20.

With five minutes left on the clock, the game was open slather, both teams giving it their all.

Straddie's crafty hooker slipped under the defence on the line and scored right under the posts to take it to 26-20.

Beaudesert did not give up and with one minute to go Joel Nilon made a one on one strip in their half to give Beaudesert possession back.

But it was to no avail and the game ended 26-20.

A disappointing end to the season, but such a great game to watch and be a part of. All 19 players gave their all and played in the true proud Beaudesert spirit.

It's too hard to find a man of the match for the game as everyone played their hearts out.

Myself personally as the coach couldn't be more proud of everyone involved with the team this year. Plenty of injuries and setbacks but they'd still turn up week in week out to give it their all! All I can say is I look forward to what next year brings for the mighty Kingfishers! We will be back bigger and better than ever.

Lion-tamer Kingies nab spot in the semi finals

By Larraine Sathicq

The Beaudesert Kingfishers open women's team nabbed a well-earned berth in the 2023 semi-finals after a thrilling match against the Slacks Creek Lions on 29 July.

Coach Keith Gee said he and fellow coach Rob Brown could not be more proud of the team after they knocked the Lions off the finals ladder..

"What a cracker of a game it was," he said.

"From the start we defended the best we have in two years, the opposition came out hard and fast but we weathered the storm."

Gee said the Kingies quickly found their rhythm and after some outstanding defence took control.

"Our attack and defence certainly has improved a lot and the team is really playing close to their best with just a few errors we need to get out of our game," he said.

"We scored several times through some great lead up work and went into the half time break leading 14 nil.

"We started the second half really well with some punishing defence"

Gee said the remainder of the second half was a true battle with some physical encounters being matched and the pace of both outside backs putting on a great display of Rugby League.

"There really was some inspirational football played from our side," he said.

"The Kingies kept the opposition down to one try and went on to win 26 - 4.

"Browny and I are really proud of their effort. They are taking ownership of their performances and are are hungry to play some consistent finals footy."

Gee said there were some outstanding individual performances in attack and defence with inspirational performances from Sarah Jacobson and Maggie Newland.

The team will prepare for the semi-finals this week with three NRLW players in legends Steph Hancock, Brittany Brayley-Nati and Shannon Mati joining the Kingies women for training on 2 August.

"The team is excited and ready to play finals footy," Gee said.

Our queen of endurance

By Erle Levey

Research scientist Andrea Laws-King and her Beaudesert horse Flash are provisional winners of the iconic Winton-to-Longreach Endurance Horse Ride.

Andrea was among the leaders right from the start of the 220km event that joins the two western towns that have played such a part in Australia's early settlement - the birthplace of Qantas and the writing of Waltzing Matilda.

Andrea spent 10 years at Kyogle in NSW and has a property at Beaudesert.

Her horse Flash is a 15-year-old chestnut gelding, home-bred at Beaudesert.

The 2023 ride started at midnight Friday from the Winton Showgrounds. It was the initiative of the Queensland Country Women's Association to celebrate 100 years of the organisation and a fundraiser for the Royal Flying Doctor Service and Angel Flight.

Significantly, Andrea has connections to both organisations.

She trains at a Mornington Peninsula racetrack owned by one of the pilots that flies for Angel Flight and who has completed 195 flights with them.

Her son was airlifted by the Royal Flying Doctor Service after a mining accident near Dubbo, NSW.

Andrea's introduction to endurance was very innocuous. As treasurer of a local preschool at Kyogle she was asked to do a fundraiser.

The committee president asked if she would do an endurance ride.

"I said, sure, what's an endurance ride?

"I was loaned a horse for a 50km ride ... and at the end of it I thought I was going to die.

"This isn't the sport for me I thought, but after another few weeks decided maybe I'll give it another go.

"I did a 40km ride and that continued to 80km. It just went from there."

The motto of endurance riding is "to compete is to win' and Andrea started the final day just wanting to get to the end and get the glass trophy to say you have finished successfully.

"I didn't care if I came last."

Riding in at the head of the field on the final leg with eldest competitor 71-year-old Ken Moir of Gympie was an inspirational part of the event for Andrea.

"Ken is a legend," she said. "He was unwell at the end of the first day.

"To get on and continue ... that is grit."

At the other end of the age spectrum was 10-year-old Taylor Grogan, also from the Gympie area, who was among the early finishers on the ride into the Longreach Showgrounds.

Taylor was one of the four junior riders who started and finished the epic event.

Riding since the age of two, Taylor comes from a strong equestrian family.

Taylor crossed the line with her mother Saasha, and is the granddaughter of well-respectred endurance enthusiast Bob Sample.

"Endurance is an incredible challenge. I worked at the old Queen Victoria Hospital in Melbourne and research is very challenging.

"Endurance was what I was missing.

"I gave it a go. I started with 40km rides and went to 80km. Championship level is 160km.

"This is another level again. This ride is huge. A one-off.

"I don't know if it will be held again.

"The last time was in 1988.

"It's 220km - 180km the first day then 40km the second day.

"There is no endurance ride in the world that I know of where you have those distances."

The Winton-to-Longreach ride is hard on both horse and rider. In endurance riding you have to be qualified through the distances to participate.

The course was flat yet psychologically difficult, Andrea said.

The weather was warm and riders needed to keep focussed.

"The fourth leg into Maneroo was the toughest. My horse was just over it.

"Mentally it's not stimulating like when you have twists and turns, mountains and timbered areas.

"I was tired, dehydrated.

"A midnight start is hard as the horses are so fresh and you are just hoping to be able to control them enough so they are not overracing.

"This landscape is amazing. You think about the landholders and the stock.

"I mean we are very lucky as they have had rain here recently.

"We wouldn't be here if they hadn't.
