Community input

JACK O'HALLORAN

WHYALLA - The Office for Hydrogen Power SA held two public consultation sessions regarding the proposed Yoorla Garngoo village in the Westlands Shopping Centre in Whyalla.

The sessions took place on Thursday, May 30, and Friday, May 31, which allowed community members to ask questions about the proposed village, with Member for Giles Eddie Hughes making an appearance on the Thursday.

Office for Hydrogen Power SA chief executive Sam Crafter said the feedback that was received from the public was very constructive.

"There's been a lot of interest … what we're really keen to do is to be able to talk to people about what the plan is, and make sure it works as best as it can," Mr Crafter said.

He said consultation with locals was essential in finding a balance between temporary lodgings and fixed accommodation providers, which would help meet the needs of the increased workforce and guarantee investment in the local economy.

"We definitely need to have some sort of temporary village to do that, but we're not starting from the perspective that that is the answer," Mr Crafter said.

"We reached out a little bit earlier in the year to a number of accommodation providers when we were looking to do some underwriting of some initial cabins.

"We're now doing (that) with Discovery Parks, to be able to get the first tranche of workers in, and to be able to guarantee that there's some investment happening…"

The chosen location for the village is an empty plot north of Jubilee Park and it is expected to house up to 380 people, with multi-purpose courts, a gym and a dining facility included in the design in order to accommodate workers.

The public was also free to ask questions regarding the Hydrogen Power Plant, including the progression of tenders for local subcontractors.

"We're in the early contractor involvement phase that we've been in with our partners… they're going through a process where they're effectively doing all the subcontracting for all of the hydrogen production and power station equipment," Mr Crafter said.

"There's a lot of engineering work that's happening, there's a lot of commercial work that's happening, and there's a lot of contracting work all happening at once … we're looking to try and finalise that information in the next month or so."

The Hydrogen Jobs Plan will create about 1000 new jobs during construction, according to the Office of Hydrogen Power SA.

Helen and Jacinta from the Office for Hydrogen Power SA with chief executive officer Sam Crafter and Member for Giles Eddie Hughes.

Given the closures of privately operated gas-fired generators, Minister for Energy and Mining Tom Koutsantonis said the State Government's $593 million hydrogen power plant had become essential in making sure there was enough energy to power the grid in coming years.

"In the privatised electricity market, operators have flirted with the edge of reliability to minimise their capital investment in new generation and maximise their profits," Mr Koutsantonis said.

"Now, new risks have emerged which show that the State Government's investment in the Hydrogen Jobs Plan is absolutely essential.

"This is an independent assessment that proves the Hydrogen Jobs Plan is good for jobs, good for the environment and good for all households in this state."

But Opposition Leader David Spiers criticised the State Government, saying that hydrogen should make way for nuclear power.

"South Australians are suffering through some of the highest electricity prices in the world for an electricity grid which is becoming increasingly more unstable," Mr Speirs said.

"Labor is chasing a renewables-only approach when it comes to power and it's South Australians who are paying the price.

"We need to have all power generation options on the table which is why the Opposition has been calling on Labor to initiate a non-ideological, open-minded investigation into nuclear energy generation in South Australia."

While Mr Crafter said that he could not comment on the policy approach from the government or the Opposition, he emphasised that hydrogen would unlock a swathe of industry development, particularly as the Whyalla steelworks transitions to green-steel.

"Hydrogen is going to play a key role in that…and magnetite, the other thing that we have here in Whyalla, are the two ingredients you need to produce a green iron product, which is really going to be the pathway to decarbonise the steel industry," Mr Crafter said.

"The most expensive part of the electricity cost at the moment is the non-renewable section that's left.

"The purpose of the power station here is to try and reduce prices for industry, particularly so that they can unlock more jobs and investment and provide them the ability to contract with renewables, but have a firm energy supply.

"At the moment, there's only a handful of generators that are doing that in South Australia, (if) you put another one in the mix, it increases competition, and that drives down the price of electricity."

Fierce fight ahead for Grey

NERALIE BAILEY AND SAM LOWE

REGION - The South Australian Liberal Party has opened nominations for pre-selection in the federal seat of Grey, thanks to the announcement of long-serving Federal Member Rowan Ramsey who will step down from his role at the next election.

"The State Executive has resolved to open nominations in these seats to ensure we are well placed ahead of the next Federal Election," said South Australian state director, Alex May.

Ms May said South Australians were poorer under Labor despite the seat of Grey being in Liberal hands for the past 16 years.

"The Liberal Party has a plan to get Australia back on track and we look forward to offering South Australians a fresh, energetic and committed team of candidates at the next federal election," Ms May said.

Local member for Stuart, Geoff Brock stepped down as Minister for Local Government, Regional Roads and Veterans Affairs, in April this year, roles he has held since the election of the State labor Government in March 2022.

It prompted chatter around the traps that he might make a move to federal politics.

Speaking at a community event earlier in the month, he admitted that he had many people approach him to stand for Federal election following Mr Ramsey's announcement that he will not contest the seat in the next election.

"You are about the thirtieth person to ask me if I would stand for election in the seat of Grey," he told The Recorder.

"I haven't discussed it with Lyn, I haven't made any decision."

Grey is considered a safe Liberal seat, but Mr Brock has been a disruptor of electoral safety in the past, having rolled former Deputy Premier of South Australia Dan van Holst Pelikaan for Stuart at the last election, demonstrating the enduring popularity of Mr Brock in the Spencer Gulf community.

Mr Brock did rule out a tilt at Grey, speaking at an Anzac Day event but it's a good tip for prospective politicians to never rule anything out definitively.

He said he had heard that the race for Grey pre-selection would be fierce, given that it is seen as 'safe'.

The Grey electorate encompasses more than 92 per cent of South Australia, including the major regional cities of Port Pirie, Whyalla, Port Lincoln, Ceduna and Port Augusta.

Mr Ramsey said he was looking forward to spending more time with his wife and children.

"I've been at it for about 16-and-a-half years – it'll be over 17 by the time of the next election – and I think that maybe we better take a bit of time for ourselves," he said.

Mr Ramsey said he was pleased to have achieved so many wins in his 16 years leading the electorate, regardless of whether they benefited all or just a small group.

Some of the achievements made under Mr Ramsey included the Port Wakefield overpass, a second bridge at Port Augusta, and dual lanes for the Augusta Highway; doubling of Farm Management Deposits, air-strip upgrades, uni-hubs, and more than $55 million of Stronger Regions Program projects.

"It's always a bit embarrassing really but I'm always pleased when people come up to me, particularly on little things, when people come to me and say 'I have this awful problem and you or your staff has fixed the problem and you cannot believe the relief it's given me'," Mr Ramsey said.

Mr Ramsey said in a seat like Grey, there was more variance than almost any other seat in Australia.

"The scope of industries, of peoples, of communities is nothing like a 40 square kilometre patch of Sydney or Adelaide where you're dealing with suburbia and four or five issues across the electorate, we've got hundreds of issues," he said.

Mr Ramsey said regardless of what party they follow, his successor must be the voice of the community.

"Whoever you may be that takes over, do a good job," Mr Ramsey said.

"Do a good job for everyone, you're not there for the Liberal Party, you are their representative absolutely, and hopefully you will strive toward Liberal Party values which are individual values, giving people a leg-up rather than a handout, enabling them in their lives.

"But the main thing is, you are there, in the case of Grey, for the 120,000 odd people that are there and try and do everything you can to make their lives better; and have the courage to back your view."

Applications for pre-selection must be on the prescribed form and lodged with the State Director at 104 Greenhill Road, Unley, 5061.

Forms are available by calling 8205 0255 or emailing: nominations@sa.liberal.org.au

Nominations are open until Wednesday June 12, 2024, 5pm.

Donating clothes for NAIDOC Youth Ball

LACHLAN SMITH

PORT AUGUSTA - The Port Augusta Youth Outreach team is calling for donations of clothing and other items for youth to be able to wear during NAIDOC Week, especially to the Youth Ball.

The Youth Outreach team is looking for donations of new or gently worn clothing, shoes and accessories for boys and girls aged between 13 and 17 years.

People can contact Youth Outreach co-ordinator Kayleenn Patterson if they have items to donate, or they can drop them off to the Salvation Army Homelessness Service on Carlton Parade until June 22.

The Youth Outreach team will develop a shop front through the Salvation Army where young people can visit in their own time or in small groups and try on some of the clothes that have been donated.

Ms Patterson said the clothing drive, which was organised by another member of the community, was a success last year.

"We recognised that it was really successful and there was a lot of young people that had a need so we wanted to build on the great work that was done last year by offering the same opportunity," Ms Patterson said.

"The Supporting Youth Collective is putting on a NAIDOC Youth Ball for the young people of Port Augusta this year."

She said giving the opportunity for young people to have access to the NAIDOC event was made easier by reducing barriers around clothing, footwear and accessories.

Ms Patterson said youths could approach the team about getting some clothes free of charge.

"The Salvation Army has been very kind to offer a physical drop off point," Ms Patterson said.

Ms Patterson is the Youth Outreach coordinator for the Department of Human Services, starting with the team last September.

"Essentially myself and the team deliver an assertive youth outreach to the community," Ms Patterson said.

"That is from 4pm to 8pm Tuesday to Friday and then from 4pm until 10pm on Saturday."

Cottage work is complete

WHYALLA - The restoration of the iconic Point Lowly cottages has been completed and is now available for booking.

Work on the cottages had been ongoing since 2021, with the Whyalla City council working closely with SA Heritage and Plan SA to ensure the renovations met heritage standards.

Mayor Phill Stone expressed his excitement about the completion of the project.

"These cottages are a beloved part of Whyalla, with families sharing fond memories at the cottages,' Mayor Stone said.

"This heritage-listed facility is such an important part of our northern coastline and the history of our city, so it was important to consider this during the renovation process."

The project was funded in part by the State Government's Local Government Infrastructure Partnership Program, and as part of council's Northern Coastline Masterplan, with over $900,000 used to refurbish the cottages.

Member for Giles Eddie Hughes said the State Government was proud to have been a part of the restoration for such an iconic site.

"These facilities are part of our community's DNA, having been enjoyed by locals for many generations," Mr Hughes said.

"They were beginning to show their age, so it's fantastic to see them not only restored, but significantly upgraded.

"I'm sure they'll be extremely popular among locals and tourists, particularly with the cuttlefish season about to start."

Part of the restoration included the removal of existing kitchens and bathrooms, added extensions and the restoration of existing timber.

The cottages will be run and operated by Kata and Belle, who also run a glamping site on the lower Eyre Peninsula.

Originally built in 1883, the cottages are the oldest buildings in the Whyalla area and were manned by two lighthouse keepers and their families for 90 years.

In addition to the refurbishment of the cottages the council has also been working on upgrading the lighthouse, which is a separate entity to the cottages.

The council said that due to the level of deterioration to the lighthouse, an engineering study would need to be carried out in order to assess the possibility of grant funding to help with the repairs.

Bookings for the cottages are available now and can be made online at the Kata and Belle website.

Whyalla crime spree

JACK O'HALLORAN

A teenager has been arrested after allegedly smashing windows in Whyalla Norrie on May 30, resulting in extensive damage to a number of shop fronts.

Police were called to Jenkins Avenue just before 5.30pm after reports that a boy had broken windows of businesses at the ABC Village before fleeing the scene.

Some time later the boy returned and caused further damage, and allegedly threw a piece of glass at a local shop owner.

The 17-year old then fled the scene on foot before he was arrested a short time later on Gallagher Street.

Angela Antonio is the victim of the alleged assault and the owner of Network Video, one of businesses that was vandalised.

Mrs Antonio said the incident had forced her to limit Network Video's opening hours, claiming that she may no longer be able to operate the store as a result.

"I'm very proud of my shop because I'm the last video store that I know of in Australia, been there for 40 years, and I am always hyper-vigilant at night time because of activities that have been going on around the place," she said.

"I have so many beautiful customers that have all messaged me, but because of this, I won't be opening at night anymore.

"This is probably the nail in the coffin of my store, this will be it."

Mrs Antonio said two young girls were inside the shop at the time of the incident, during which she became very concerned for their safety.

"My main concern was the two young girls, so I went and grabbed them and hid them behind the counter."

According to RedSuburbs.com, crime in Whyalla Norrie alone increased by over 13 per cent from 2022 to 2023, something which Mrs Antonio said she has witnessed first hand as a business owner in the area.

Network Video was vandalised last Thursday. 411694 Picture: ANGELA ANTONIO

"It's coming more and more and more across the city, it used to be in secluded areas (but) now it's coming up further across the city…"

The arrested youth was subsequently charged with four counts of damage and one count of assault, and has been bailed to attend the Whyalla Magistrates Court on July 31.

Health care support

PORT PIRIE - The dream of creating a new health training hub at the Port Pirie Hospital is set to come true, with $11.5 million in funding to be allocated in the 2024/25 State Budget.

The hub will be the centre of learning for medical, nursing and allied health clinicians who are on placement at the hospital and provide education to allied health care staff across the Upper Spencer Gulf.

The new facility will give students the ability to learn in a range of environments which would include emergency room and aged care facilities and deal with equipment such as ventilators and medication carts.

The hub will complement the work done by UniHub Spencer Gulf and should be able to support 50 medical students, 100 nursing undergraduate and postgraduates students and 70 allied health students each year as well as supply services for ongoing training, upskilling and professional development without the need to travel out of the region.

Premier Peter Malinauskas said that as part of the State Prosperity Project, the government was determined to grow the Upper Spencer Gulf, which in turn meant there needed to be an investment in health care.

"We've already invested in a significant redevelopment of the Port Pirie Hospital's emergency department, and now we are investing in a major clinician training hub for the Upper Spencer Gulf," he said.

"The clinical simulation training laboratory will feature state-of-the-art technology, which will allow more health workers to undertake their training in regional South Australia."

The investment in the new facility follows the $12 million in funding which was allocated in the 2022-23 budget for the redevelopment of the hospital's emergency department.

Local Member Geoff Brock said that the clinical simulation training facility is a big step closer to being a reality for nursing, medical and allied health students in the Spencer Gulf.

Picture: NERALIE BAILEY

Last month, Member for Stuart Geoff Brock Port Pirie Regional Council Mayor Leon Stephens and Anita Kuss, chief executive officer of UniHub Spencer Gulf, met with State Health Minister Chris Picton to discuss the idea of having a clinical simulation training unit in Port Pirie.

At the time Mr Brock said the original proposal had been redeveloped into a far more comprehensive model which had been submitted to SA Health for consideration.

"This is a great outcome for the Port Pirie community," Mr Brock said.

"This commitment will see more than $20 million invested in the hospital."

New Whyalla UnitingSA hub opens

WHYALLA - A new hub for community services was opened by UnitingSA last week, with the hopes it will be able to better help with the needs of a growing city.

Situated on Moran Street, the modern facility consolidates UnitingSA's trio of co-located services, encompassing mental health, National Disability Insurance Scheme (NDIS), and Wesley Social Enterprises (WSE).

The UnitingSA Board, Member for Giles Eddie Hughes and Whyalla Mayor Phill Stone were all in attendance for the opening on Thursday, May 30.

CEO of UnitingSA chief executive officer Jenny Hall said the new facility, which replaces an outdated building on Head Street, would help build on the not-for-profit's long standing presence in the community and accommodate the growing needs of a town such as Whyalla.

"While a lot of our work takes place in the metropolitan area, as an organisation, we also have a growing presence in regional South Australian centres like Whyalla," Ms Hall said.

Earlier this year UnitingSA secured a tender to deliver non-governmental assistance to individuals grappling with mental health issues, securing funding for the next nine years.

UnitingSA chief executive Jenny Hall; UnitingSA Board chair Gael Fraser; Rev Les Underwood, and Giles MP Eddie Hughes cut the ribbon. 411532

Picture: UNITINGSA

Ms Hall went on to stress the importance of acknowledging and addressing the challenges faced by families and individuals in rural and remote areas, particularly in the midst of the cost of living crisis.

"To ignore the regions outside of the city, is to ignore that many families and individuals living in country and remote communities face similar challenges to those in the metropolitan area," she said.

"Some of these challenges include housing and cost of living pressures and the need for quality support services in the areas of mental health, employment and disability."

Earlier this year UnitingSA secured a tender to deliver non-governmental assistance to individuals grappling with mental health issues, securing funding for the next nine years.

The mental health services offered at the new UnitingSA site will be designed to assist individuals in managing mental health concerns, fostering positive relationships, and pursuing personal objectives.

NDIS and WSE services will also be available and will facilitate community engagement for residents living with a disability, and employment services for those from culturally and linguistically diverse backgrounds.

Woolies worker assaulted

JACK O'HALLORAN

WHYALLA - South Australian Police are currently investigating an assault that unfolded at the Westlands Woolworths in Whyalla last week.

Police were called to Westlands at approximately 1.30pm on Thursday, May 30, after reports that a Woolworths worker had been assaulted.

The alleged perpetrator, who had been accused of shoplifting, subsequently left the scene following the altercation before police arrived.

The female victim suffered facial injuries as a result of the assault, with inquiries into the incident ongoing.

A spokesperson for Woolworths said that they were supporting the team member involved, which included providing access to counselling.

"We do not tolerate abuse in any circumstance and there is no place for this behaviour anywhere in our community," the spokesperson said.

"Our team members do the very best they can to help customers, and they deserve to be treated with respect."

In 2017, the Shop, Distributive and Allied Employees Association (SDA) launched the Nobody Deserves a Serve campaign to create awareness about retail and fast food workers facing abuse and violent behaviour from customers at work.

A survey commissioned by the SDA last year found that since the campaign's launch the prevalence of abusive behaviours towards retail and fast food workers had not subsided.

In the 2023 survey, 87 per cent of respondents said that they had faced verbal abuse from customers in comparison to 88pc in 2021, while the level of respondents who said they were the victim of physical violence rose from 8pc to 12.5pc.

The survey also found that the number of repeat offenders had risen significantly, with 52pc of workers reporting that the same customer was abusive or violent towards them on more than one occasion.

If anyone has any information regarding the incident please contact crimestoppers on 1800 333 000.

Augusta crime crackdown

REGION - There is a call to attract more frontline police officers, especially in regional South Australia, as crime and public safety continue to come under scrutiny.

On a trip to the Spencer Gulf and Flinders Ranges recently, Leader of the Opposition David Speirs spoke to a number of community members who raised concerns about the level of crime in the region.

"During my most recent visit to Port Augusta, it was made abundantly clear to me that crime is a key and growing concern for the local community," Mr Speirs said.

"Theft and vandalism are rife at businesses, fights in the street are a common occurrence, and the prevalence of youth crime is a massive worry."

Mr Speirs said Port Augusta had a higher level of reported crime relative to its population.

He said last month SAPOL crime statistics showed the number of home invasions in the Spencer Gulf city was reported as 17, compared to the 10 in Adelaide, which had a much larger population.

"What's occurring in the Spencer Gulf city is yet another striking example of why it's so important that the Malinauskas Labor Government does more to boost police recruits in South Australia," Mr Speirs said.

"SAPOL is under-resourced, with record numbers of police leaving the force, which means there are fewer frontline officers keeping the community safe.

"It's clear Port Augusta is experiencing an overrepresentation of crime relative to its population, and there's an urgent need for increased police resources."

A SAPOL spokesperson said local police reviewed reported crimes daily and used local resources such as Volume Crime Teams along with specific policing operations in the effort to reduce crime.

Opposition Leader David Speirs chats with Port Augusta Mayor, Linley Shine, and Federal Member for Grey, Rowan Ramsey. 411775

"Local resources can and are supplemented by police from other locations on a need basis, where specialist capabilities or specific activities are being undertaken," the spokesperson said.

"Local police also provide the community, including victims of crime, with information about security measures that can also assist to prevent crime."

To halt the rising trend of crime in Port Augusta, the spokesperson said SAPOL had a focus on preventing and detecting crimes including apprehending offenders and bringing them before the courts.

"It should be noted that a relatively small known cohort of young people are actively involved in offending, and numerous arrests have been made," they said.

"SAPOL also works in partnership with the Port Augusta community and key stakeholders, through the Department of Human Services led, Safety and Wellbeing Remote and Regional Visitor Taskforce, to address the underlying social causes that can lead to crime and anti-social behaviour in the community.

"Several youth specific local multi-agency meetings, including SAPOL involvement, are held on a regular basis for this purpose."

In regard to other states poaching SAPOL officers, Shadow Minister for Police, Corrections and Community Safety, Sam Telfer, said there must be a focus on retaining officers which could include an incentive strategy to attract and retain them in South Australia.

"Other states are winning the race when it comes to attracting new officers, with Queensland putting huge financial incentives on the table, and Western Australia launching its international recruitment campaign more than a year before SA's got off the ground," Mr Telfer said.

"The New South Wales Labor Government has also recently launched a brazen raid on our police resources, incentivising serving SAPOL officers to move interstate while keeping their equivalent rank.

"We simply can't be losing those veteran police officers and their wealth of experience."

Minister for Police Dan Cregan said this week's 2024/25 State Budget would include funding for new measures which would free up more than 100 police officers and SAPOL staff for operational duties.

"SA also has more frontline officers per capita than any other state, with significantly expanded recruitment campaigns locally, interstate and overseas," Mr Cregan said.

"Up to $10,000 in relocation support is available for new recruits from interstate, while regional incentives in certain areas include accommodation and financial relief.

"Reimbursement of visa costs is also offered as part of the Government's global drive to recruit up to 200 experienced officers in New Zealand, the UK and Ireland."

Port Davis boat ramp upgrade now complete

PORT PIRIE - The refurbishment of the Port Davis Boat Ramp has been completed with the construction of a new two lane concrete ramp with pontoon system, raising and spray seal of the carpark area and installation of several solar lights.

Both the car park and boat ramp improvements were based on the guidelines for Planning, Design and Construction of Boat Launching Facilities that were provided by the South Australian Boating Facility Advisory Committee. Port Pirie Regional Council Mayor Leon Stephens said the project was a long term investment for the region.

"This is a long-awaited opportunity for boat users to launch safely and fish the pristine waters off the Spencer Gulf," Mayor Stephens said.

"I envisage huge growth for this ramp, particularly as Port Pirie develops towards the south-west."

Grant funding from South Australian Boating Facilities committed more than $1.23 million for the construction of works and in addition the Port Pirie Regional Council committed $300,000 towards the construction. State Minister for Infrastructure and Transport Tom Koutsantonis said it has been good to see the work progress so well.

"I'm delighted to be able to open this refurbished boat ramp facility, which will improve safety and accessibility for boating and recreational users," Mr Koutsantonis said.

To celebrate the completion of the boat ramp, an official opening ceremony will be held at the Port Davis Boat Ramp on Wednesday, June 12 at 1pm.

The opening will be conducted by Mr Koutsantonis along with Mayor Stephens, and the community is welcome to attend.

Foreshore upgrade near completion

SAM LOWE

PORT BROUGHTON - Barunga West Council has received an additional $500,000 of funding to deliver the Port Broughton Civic Square revitalisation and main street upgrade project, bringing the total investment to $1 million.

Community consultation for the Civic Square project first started in March 2022, and now, after just shy of a year's worth of actual construction, the 'transformative' project is set to be officially unveiled by the end of the current financial year.

One of the key upgrades at Civic Square includes a water play area - the first of its kind in the Mid North and Yorke Peninsula.

Minister for Housing and Urban Development, Nick Champion, said it was vital to continue upgrading open spaces in regional South Australia to ensure people feel connected to their local communities.

"Port Broughton is an important community hub at the top of the Yorke Peninsula and the upgrades to the Civic Square and main street will help create a vibrant local space for residents and visitors to enjoy," he said.

Key features of the Civic Square revitalisation included:

- Flag display and memorial space: The design included flying the South Australian and Aboriginal flags alongside the Australian flag, respecting the region's cultural and historical significance.
- Landscaping: The area will be landscaped with native and coastal drought-tolerant plants to ensure sustainability.
- Public art: The square will feature murals, carvings, and sculptures, including symbols and totems to acknowledge the Narungga people and their traditional lands; Narungga language will also be incorporated.
- Interactive play areas: Safe and engaging play spaces for children, including a 'blue space' with water jets and lights designed for both play and ceremonial uses.
- Amenities: The square will provide ample seating, along with green spaces for comfort and accessibility.

Barunga West council chief executive Maree Wauchope said the council was committed to delivering a space that reflected the desires and needs of both residents and visitors.

"This has been a massive boost to our funds, we're a very small council with lots of assets to renew and upgrade," she said.

"Port Broughton's foreshore is quite popular within the Mid North and Yorke Peninsula region, and this [upgrade] just provides a further attraction.

Picture: SUPPLIED

"What it does, it attracts visitors to our townships who then go and spend money in our main street, along our cafes, in takeaway places, and in hotels … we're hoping that people actually see Port Broughton as a place to see for the weekend."

Ms Wauchope said there were some exciting upgrades included in the project, like the water play space, and Indigenous public artwork on totems around the square.

"It's the first water feature of its kind in the region, so it's similar to what you would see at Henley Square, or Moseley Square in Glenelg, it's going to be quite interactive … it'll be very attractive for younger kids, older kids, and kids of all ages," she said.

"We went through a process to award this project to a prominent First Nations artist so it's fantastic to have Linda Turner on board.

"These totems will be put in place over the coming weeks, and the art actually represents four Indigenous totems and tells the story of the area; I think it's important to include First Nations input into our projects.

"We [the council] have been working with the Narungga Aboriginal Progress Association for a couple of years now, and this is the first project that will be implemented so it's really special."

Member for Narungga Fraser Ellis said he was looking forward to the completed project delivery and its addition to the Port Broughton foreshore.

"I was pleased to formally support the Civic Square project during the funding process, and securing this major funding is just reward for the proactive efforts of the parochial Port Broughton community and Barunga West Council," he said.

"I'm sure it will be an asset also enjoyed by the community and its ever-increasing numbers of tourists visiting Port Broughton."

In addition to the Civic Square, Barunga West Council is progressing with the development of construction drawings for the next stage of the main street upgrade for Bay Street, Port Broughton.

This project is aimed at improving the main thoroughfare and enhancing the streetscape of the town.

Barunga West Mayor Leonie Kerley said the funding commitment from the State Government was a crucial step forward for Port Broughton and the Top of the Yorke.

"The Civic Square and Main Street upgrades will provide much-needed improvements to our community infrastructure and capture the imagination and interest of the entire community," she said.

Mullet shave raises over $4500

JACK O'HALLORAN

WHYALLA'S best-known mullet is now gone for good, after Isaac King shaved off his locks for charity on the weekend.

The Whyalla teenager had his mullet shaved at the Roopena Football Club on Saturday with over $1200 raised for charity in one night.

Isaac first began growing the mullet over five years ago, on a dare from his brother and he has been growing it out ever since.

Issac's brother, Ethan Phyland, sadly took his life in February 2021, prompting the teen to begin raising funds for the Black Dog Institute.

Over $4500 had since been donated to Isaac's cause culminating with the final shave last Saturday, with raffles and prizes given out on the night in exchange for donations.

"We had raffles that had been given from the Westlands Hotel, the Sundowner and Intersport," said Isaac's mother Jackie.

"The hairdresser suggested we put Isaac's hair into different ponytail sections, and the kids would pay five dollars to cut one off … that alone raised something like $600."

According to the Black Dog Institute, suicide is the leading cause of death among people aged between 15 and 44 in Australia, and over 50 per cent of people do not seek help for mental health issues.

The Mullets for Mental Health initiative was started by the Black Dog Institute as a way of creating awareness for mental health issues in men, with millions of dollars raised as part of the initiative.

"A lot of people have donated in the community which has been good … we're very proud," Jackie said.

Investing in kids' futures

PRESCHOOL is set to look a little different in the next couple of years, as the State Government is set to introduce a universal three-year-old preschool program.

An investment of $715 million for the program is expected to be deposited over a five-year period, with the funding to be included in the 2024/25 State Budget, which will be delivered on Thursday, June 6.

Port Pirie will be one of two locations where integrated hubs will be established by the end of next year, with the other to be located in the northern suburbs of Adelaide.

The sites will be used as guides for establishing future hubs and will include children and family health services and parenting programs.

The rollout of other hubs will begin in 2026 and continue for some years.

The State Government has devised the program on key recommendations from the Royal Commission into Early Childhood Education and Care.

The investment includes:

- $339.7 million over five years to deliver universal 3-year-old preschool in government and non-government settings, including long day care centres
- $127.3 million over four years to provide 30 hours per week of preschool to 3 and 4-year-old children at greatest risk of developmental vulnerability.
- $96.6 million over four years to grow and support the early childhood workforce and provide support for quality teaching and learning in preparation for 3-year-old preschool delivery
- $30.6 million over four years to align the support offered through 4-year-old preschool with enhanced supports being developed for 3-year-old preschool
- $14 million over four years to partner with Aboriginal communities to increase the benefits Aboriginal children receive from 3-year-old preschool

Minister for Education, Training and Skills Blair Boyer said the Royal Commission showed that early learning programs could have a significant positive impact, especially for children from disadvantaged backgrounds.

"Our goal is to strengthen the connection between families and preschool programs, health and support services so fewer South Australian children are starting school developmentally vulnerable," Minister Boyle said.

" We are acting now to improve future outcomes for our most vulnerable children and this budget shows the priority we place on this important education reform."

SINCE COVID-19 made it to our shores, respiratory conditions such as RSV (Respiratory Syncytial Virus), whooping cough, pneumonia and the flu have become a concern, especially at this time in South Australia.

Currently the number of people who have these medical conditions with the need to be hospitalised has caused the perfect storm.

Hospitals and emergency departments around the state are overwhelmed with patients which has resulted in SA Health calling a Code Yellow, which means elective procedures and surgeries have been placed on hold as medical institutions deal with a shortage of beds and staff.

There is still time for people to have their vaccinations for influenza and other respiratory conditions. Instead of waiting for a doctor's appointment, remember that for many vaccines we can now pay a visit to the pharmacy - these days pharmacists are well trained in handling most vaccinations. It is a pity that the lessons we learned during the pandemic are not front and centre, with many people with symptoms of respiratory conditions are not wearing masks or isolating themselves away from crowds.

With what the world has gone through in the past four years people should not be afraid to put on a mask in public if they have the slightest inclination that they may be sick. I, as well as many others, would applaud you for your care and consideration.

Keep secrets

DR JOY PENMAN

CRUCIAL in a wide range of jobs is maintaining confidentiality, which is defined as the state of keeping secret or not disclosing information.

In legal terms, it refers to the duty of an individual to refrain from sharing confidential information with others without the expressed consent of the person.

Confidentiality matters for a number of reasons. You do not wish to risk losing people's trust. You need to observe it to ensure your future employment.

It is important also for legal reasons. Failure to protect and secure confidential information may lead to the misuse of the information.

Consider the following scenarios:

Young professional Stella worked in the Human Resources department of a large corporation, where she handled sensitive information about employees.

While sifting through confidential files, she stumbled upon a private document that revealed an employee's personal struggles.

The document was meant to be kept confidential, but Stella was tempted to share the information with her colleagues.

As Stella pondered what to do, she remembered the wise words of her mentor: "The information you hear at the workplace stays at the workplace!"

She realised that sharing confidential information could damage trust and put her job at risk.

She decided to keep the secret safe and only share the information with those who needed to know.

Stella soon found herself in another situation where confidentiality was imperative.

A colleague, David, approached her and asked about another employee's social security benefits.

She knew that this information was private and could only be shared with the employee's consent.

She politely declined his request, explaining that confidentiality was essential in their line of work.

As Stella navigated these challenges, she learned that confidentiality wasn't just about keeping secrets – it was also about building trust and maintaining professionalism.

The information you hear at the workplace stays at the workplace. Picture: SUPPLIED

She realised that by protecting sensitive information, she was not only doing her job but also upholding the values of her organisation.

Another scenario highlights the importance of confidentiality in healthcare.

Meet Dr Taylor, a dedicated doctor who worked at a community health centre.

One day, while treating a patient, he discovered that the patient was his best friend's son. The young patient begged him not to tell his parents about his visit.

Dr Taylor knew that as a healthcare professional, he was bound by confidentiality rules to protect his patient's privacy.

By law, medical records and health information must be kept safe and private by all medical and healthcare professionals.

He decided to respect the patient's wishes and kept the secret safe.

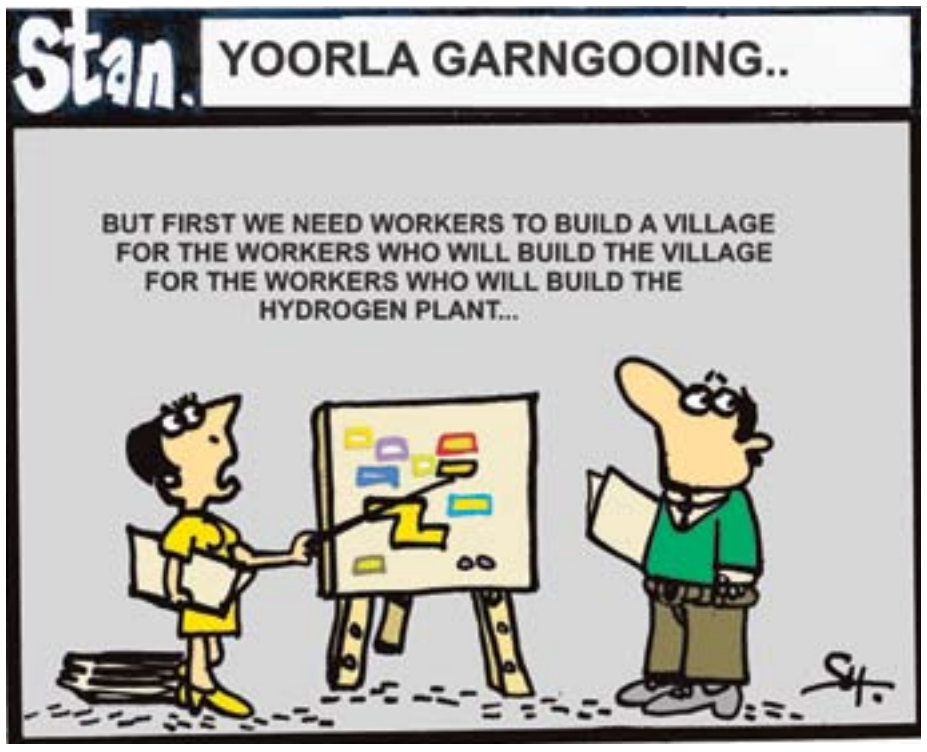

As he reflected on his decision, he realised that confidentiality wasn't just about keeping secrets – it was also about patient's dignity and upholding rights and preferences.

And finally, Matthew, a social worker, faced a similar challenge.

He was out with his family shopping when another healthcare professional approached him and shared confidential information about one of their clients, thought trying hard not to mention names and identifying details.

Matthew knew that he couldn't disclose this information to anyone else, not even disguising the specifics, so he politely declined to comment.

Helping rural health

IN our lifetime, most rural families have benefitted from access to country hospitals, but sadly, we are now witnessing firsthand the deterioration of these crucial services given the heavy reliance on a dwindling number of General Practitioners and nurses.

We were both born in a country hospital, and we remain determined that none should close.

In reality, we are seeing a shift in the delivery of healthcare from regional areas to metropolitan Adelaide.

This centralisation has not resulted in a more efficient system.

On the contrary, it has led to ramping, overcrowded emergency departments, delayed care, excessive travel and time away from home for regional residents, and worse health outcomes for regional based patients.

South Australia is facing a healthcare crisis, particularly in regional communities.

From July 1, the State Labor Government's decision to impose payroll tax on GP clinics – despite exempting bulk-billing appointments – is expected to penalise our country hospital on-call GPs and increase costs for private patients.

Regional South Australia has the lowest number of psychiatrists per capita in the country and mental health facilities are lacking.

Our country towns are desperate for doctors and nurses but without better government incentives on offer like other states we will lose our medicos across the border.

Securing the workforce is one challenge, but they also need proper facilities.

Our country hospitals are in dire need of upgrades, yet government funding extends more to marginal or independently held seats.

What is worse, most upgrades that Labor promised at the election haven't even commenced.

Litigation and insurance risks have also led to more patients being transferred to city hospitals, causing regional doctors and nurses to lose their practical skills.

To ensure the long-term sustainability of the sector, it is crucial to secure not only the workforce but also the necessary infrastructure and expertise.

We will not forget that Labor promised to 'fix' the health system.

They promised to FIX ramping.

And they asked each and every South Australian to "vote Labor like your life depends on it".

Our question for Peter Malinauskas and his Labor Government is:Where is that urgency now?

The path to reconciliation

JACK O'HALLORAN

WHYALLA - The University of South Australia hosted a morning tea on Wednesday, May 29, as part of its recognition of National Reconciliation Week.

The event was held on the lawns outside of Mint Cafe with students, faculty, and members of the community in attendance.

Respected Barngarla woman Kelly Abdulla gave a warm Welcome to Country to begin proceedings, explaining the relevance of this year's theme for National Reconciliation Week, Now More Than Ever.

"I would like you all here to acknowledge that the land and waters on which we are meeting upon today, is the home of the Barngarla people," Ms Abdulla began.

"Our spiritual connections to this beautiful country and our cultural beliefs are an important focus of our past, present and future.

"On behalf of the Barngarla people, I would like to welcome you all here to UniSA, the Whyalla campus, for National Reconciliation Week.

"Its theme this year is Now More Than Ever, which is a reminder to continue the fight for justice and rights for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people."

Students from a range of academic backgrounds were in attendance including those enrolled in the Aboriginal Pathways program, with the event marking the end of their 18-month enrolment in the program.

UniSA Whyalla Campus regional manager Paul Havelberg said the program had been successful in providing Indigenous students with the opportunity to excel in higher education.

"The Aboriginal Pathways program, designed to support students in transitioning to university studies, has been instrumental in equipping students with the necessary skills and confidence to pursue their preferred degrees," Mr Havelberg said.

Following the Welcome to Country, people were free to indulge in a range of bush-tucker infused treats.

Mr Havelberg went on to emphasise UniSA's commitment to reconciliation, as evidenced by the planned construction of a Yarning Circle on campus towards the end of this year.

Yarning Circles are an integral part of Indigenous Australian culture, offering the chance for people to share their thoughts and feelings in a respectful manner whilst being immersed in nature.

"One aspect of our reconciliation action plan at UniSA is to construct Yarning Circles at both our Whyalla and Mawson Lakes campuses," Mr Havelberg said.

"We've been working with the local Barngarla elders who have been instrumental in advising, guiding and supporting the concept and design."

Sandra Walsh, Michelle Bochnicek (back) and Sally Higgins enjoyed the morning tea. 410503

Changes to purge plastic

JACK O'HALLORAN

WHYALLA - The next stage of South Australia's ban on single-use plastics will be coming into operation on September 1, and businesses are urged to make sure they are prepared.

Green Industries SA made the announcement on Friday, May 24, and said there would be no grace period for the sale, supply and distribution of the banned items, except where exemptions apply.

The items listed as part of stage four of the ban include plastic carrier bags, thick supermarket or boutique-styled plastic bags, expanded polystyrene food and beverage containers and single-use plastic food and beverage containers.

Green Industries SA acting chief executive Josh Wheeler said businesses which moved ahead of the ban showed they were actively listening to the plights of their consumers.

"South Australians have sent the message loudly and clearly that they expect businesses, large and small, to reduce their use of single-use plastics," Mr Wheeler said.

"The community has said to Green Industries SA in the strongest possible terms they value South Australia's reputation as a leader on reducing waste and increasing recycling, and that they want more done to protect our environment.

"Green Industries SA would encourage all businesses to listen to the sentiments of customers who have said that they want less single-use plastic, less packaging and more sustainable alternatives when shopping."

According to a report from consulting firm PwC, it is common for eco-friendly packaging alternatives to have a higher price tag but Mr Wheeler said that Green Industries SA had worked closely with businesses to ensure the ban did not have a detrimental impact on local economies.

"We've had a close working relationship with our stakeholder task force who represent retailers, the hospitality sector, those living with a disability and the recycling and resource recovery industry to make sure that our ongoing move away from single-use plastics is as smooth and effective as possible," he said.

"Our goal is making sure everyone is aware of the bans, and aware of what alternatives are available."

One such business that has managed to stay a step ahead of the ban is Whyalla's Sumthin' Tastee.

Stage four of SA's ban on single-use plastics will come into effect September 1. 338191

Picture: UNSPLASH

Rob North, owner of the cafe, said he had made a concerted effort to phase out single-use plastics at his business and instead used eco-friendly alternatives.

"Everything we buy is from bio-tech…so we're actually trying to get a head start," Mr North said.

After watching a number of documentaries that explained the effect of microplastics on marine life, Mr North said he felt even more compelled to switch from plastic to biodegradable food packaging.

"All of our food gets served in cardboard boxes for takeaway, which is all biodegradable," he said.

The legislation to ban single-use plastics was first introduced in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, as the State Parliament passed the Single-use and Other Plastic Products (Waste Avoidance) Act 2020.

Since then, the State Government has gradually introduced new phases to the ban so as to not isolate businesses that had become reliant on using non-biodegradable plastics.

"South Australia has actively removed more than 12 single-use plastic categories … all of South Australia's coastal communities should be particularly aware of the need to reduce single-use plastics in our highly valued environment," Mr Wheeler said.

"Seventy three per cent of all beach litter worldwide is plastic.

"This plastic is harmful to the marine environment, but so much of it is avoidable by transitioning to reusable, recyclable and compostable alternatives."

Quorn's new doctor

QUORN - A second general practitioner has been secured for the Quorn Medical Practice.

The Flinders Ranges Council announced the appointment of Dr Luhaka Kanda which will help to ensure the continued health and wellbeing for the community.

The Flinders Ranges Council Mayor, Ken Anderson, said he was thrilled Country and Outback Health (CObH) had been able to secure a second doctor for the Quorn Medical Practice.

He said the medical professional would be seeing their first local patients on Monday, June 17.

"Only recently announcing the securing of a doctor for the Quorn area was great, but how to have secured a second doctor is absolutely amazing," Mayor Anderson said.

"Again, I congratulate CObH who have fought so hard for the Quorn and surrounding communities to secure doctors for the practice."

He said the second doctor would cement the certainty for the future of health care in the region.

"We are so very lucky, considering that other areas are still fighting to attract one doctor, so to have secured two for our area is just outstanding," Mayor Anderson said.

Country and Outback Health chief executive officer Zieco Sheldon said Dr Kanda was looking forward to joining the team.

He said Dr Kanda had more than 20 years experience in general and family medicine.

"Dr Kanda is dedicated to building trust with patients from diverse backgrounds, ages and circumstances and will work alongside Dr Mlawanda who commenced in April this year," Mr Sheldon said.

"He will arrive in Quorn in early June with his family and will soon settle into the community."

The Flinders Ranges Council will hold a community meet and greet for Dr Kanda on Wednesday, June 12, from 1pm in the Quorn Arts Precinct.

The council is inviting all community members to go along for an informal chat and sausage sizzle.

Port Pirie Regional Council

A Word from the Mayor

The day I am writing this we see the first sign of rain this season. Let's just hope we get a good soaking and continued showers to give our farming sector a season – talk about resilience from this sector! Best wishes to you all and thank you for what you do for our country.

The Mayor of Port Augusta and I have had a meeting with the Commissioner of Children and Young People, Helen Connolly, regarding the spiraling issues we are facing with our youngsters. Commissioner Connolly was very receptive and we have hatched a plan to speak to other cities and towns to form a report to Government in the hope it will be implemented in our area.

Following that theme, I had the great pleasure of opening a Career Roadshow in Port Pirie supported by schools and service providers in the area. Thank you so much for the effort applied by all the organizers, the future relies on us giving these kids that hope.

Port Pirie opened its EV Charging Station at the Port Pirie Regional Tourism and Arts Centre site. This was a joint project form the State Government of the day in collaboration with the RAA and has been rolled out throughout the country with at least 20 being installed thus far in the region.

Planning has started for the end of year and because of the success of last year's Christmas Pageant, Market and Carols by Candlelight event, we are meeting and planning the same for this year.

I had a meeting with the Health Minister Chris Picton at Parliament House accompanied by UniHub's CEO Anita Kuss and our Local Member Geoff Brock resulting from a letter I wrote to the Premier in November regarding the Medical Simulator we would like built at the Port Pirie Hospital. Although the outcome wasn't determined and the Minister said the project wasn't at that time in the budget , he was quietly optimistic on a positive outcome. This will be a game changer for regional SA, giving us the ability to train registered nurses and paramedics for our regions, removing the need for people to travel interstate for training, as well as the expense and the risk of them not returning to the region after their training . Fingers crossed we can get a result and thanks to the advocacy from Anita and Geoff.

Council's CEO, Deputy Mayor Kendall Jackson and I also had the opportunity to meet with the Opposition Leader David Speirs to share information on what's happening in the region. Topically, we talked of country roads and were pleased with a program he was running to gain intel on people's thoughts on roads that need attention.

I was also invited to a cultural burning by Nukunu elders at Wilmington, what an intriguing and educational afternoon. I thank the Traditional Owners for the invitation and the story I have taken away from the day and encourage any of you to research cultural burning.

In closing, we had a little fun also. The Mayoress and I were invited to Government House for afternoon tea and to stay overnight by the Governor, we felt very spoilt and honored. We also attended Sing Australia's 20th Birthday celebration, with a great afternoon of song and even got to perform a duet with Geoff Brock in front of the whole audience. I don't know how I was dragged into that, but it was a lot of fun, and I am sure I will return the favor one day to him.

In closing as always, please be kind to one another and be proud of where you live.

Juniors ready for a tackle

SUE DALLA SANTA

PORT AUGUSTA - Maya Fuller and Bridie Lukich have been selected to play for the under 15 Girls School State football team to compete in Queensland July 27 to August 3, 2024.

Both girls are excited about the chance to play football at an elite level.

They recent spoke to Sue Dalla Santa to speak of how the love of football has given them this great opportunity.

MAYA FULLER

WHAT DOES IT FEEL LIKE TO REPRESENT THE STATE?

It is an exciting opportunity.

I did not know what to expect when I was proceeding through the three selection processes which focussed on skills and game knowledge.

I have played football since 2020 at the age of ten when a season of netball was cancelled due to COVID.

My Dad, Mark Fuller, who plays for Centrals, has played 400 league games and has been a great influence in passing on his knowledge of the game and giving me sound advice on how to best play positions on the field.

The advice has been useful when I play in the local under 15 bboys and women's competitions.

I am a keen Collingwood supporter and take particular note on how the team makes its game plan work.

DO YOU PLAY OTHER SPORTS?

I play netball and basketball and find both fun as I play in teams with friends.

My real passion is football.

I am hoping to be selected again for the under 15 North Adelaide female team after playing against the metro team in the July selection.

I have been selected the last three years in the underage teams.

I look forward to seeing where my long-term future in football progresses.

A lot of dedication is required and to reach elite levels I would need to reside in Adelaide.

At this point in time and being young I have reservations being confident enough to leave Port Augusta and my supportive family.

In the Spotlight

WHY IS FOOTBALL YOUR PREFERRED SPORT?

I've grown up with football.

I followed Dad watching him play and being at the football club you feel part of the game.

Playing football is embedded in the Fuller family.

At training sessions Dad would give me a few hints on the best skills to adopt when playing various football positions.

I find there is strong team bond with players in footy.

To win games we all have to be committed to being focused on a team approach using our best skills and knowing each other's strengths.

I love it when Nanna and Pop watch me play not just football but all my sports.

Playing for someone special spurs me to perform at my best.

HAVE YOU ANY MEMORABLE MOMENTS?

Apart from football, netball and basketball achievements our family six weeks holiday in America when I was nine is most memorable.

The trip included my dancing experience with Dance Explosions to perform at Disneyland and Universal Studios.

It was my first overseas trip and I mostly remember the magnitude of all the Theme Parks I enjoyed.

There is nothing in comparison elsewhere.

Being selected in the under 15 Girls School State team is the best moment to date.

WHAT IS YOUR FUTURE CAREER AMBITION?

I am currently a year 10 Caritas student.

I have an ambition to pursue a career in sport most likely as a Physical Education teacher.

Mum Jordan and Dad have been great roles models in guiding and supporting my future ambitions in sport and future career choices.

Maya Fuller and Bridie Lukich have been selected to play in the under 15 Girls School State football team to compete in Queensland in July and August. Picture: SUE DALLA SANTA

BRIDIE LUKICH

WHAT DOES IT FEEL LIKE TO REPRESENT THE STATE?

I was thrilled to know I was named as a member of the team.

The three selection processes focussed on skills and game knowledge.

I have played football since I was 11 for Souths.

In 2021, I played in the under 14 girls football competition which played against Centrals, Westies and Whyalla.

I didn't really have many football skills, but I had fun experiencing the inclusion of playing in a skilled team learning the game and practising skill techniques.

My Dad, Jason Lukich, has played 200 senior games and as I play in similar positions he has over the years on the wing, midfield and forward his advice and practicing techniques with me has improved my level of skills and confidence.

I am a keen Port Adelaide supporter and I watch very closely how the midfield players Rozee, Butters and Horne-Francis play their games.

DO YOU PLAY OTHER SPORTS?

I play netball and basketball and I have found that there are skills that translate to football relating mostly in defence.

Understanding the skills has made it easier for me to adapt to football.

Playing in the local under 15 boys competition has improved my skills.

I learn from the players, and I am getting more competitive and fearless.

In 2022 I was selected in under 14 Girls North Adelaide Development Squad, and I am hoping again for successful selection in 2024.

WHY IS FOOTBALL YOUR PREFERRED SPORT?

I like the timetable playing footy Friday nights and Saturdays and thoroughly enjoy playing in wet weather.

The playing fields are a softer playing surface than that of netball and basketball and there is much more space to run.

So far, I've had no football injuries but in basketball I've suffered ankle and wrist injuries.

HAVE YOU ANY MEMORABLE MOMENTS?

It was most memorable when I kicked my first goal playing in the under 13 boys football competition.

Making the under 15 Girls School State Football team is a special achievement, and I am looking forward to playing in Queensland.

Apart from sport our family cruise holiday to Mystery Island and Vanuatu was an enjoyable experience.

On the cruise there was a lot of entertainment, and the variety of food was amazing.

There was also this feel of freedom being away from hustle and bustle.

It was a pleasant time also meeting interesting people from different backgrounds.

WHAT IS YOUR FUTURE CAREER AMBITION?

I would like to pursue a career in sport.

I am currently a Year 10 Caritas student.

Mum, Casey, and Dad are supportive of my endeavours to succeed in sport.

In the background Nan Carey and Uncle Ryan Struck provide good advice on how best to prepare myself with my ambitions.

I will see where the football journey takes me.

Hopefully I will be good enough to play at an elite level.

Some surgeries postponed in Spencer Gulf

JACK O'HALLORAN

REGION - Some elective surgeries have been put on hold at the Whyalla and Port Augusta hospitals as part of the statewide Code Yellow response to an increase in flu, respiratory illnesses and COVID-19 cases.

The Code Yellow was announced by SA Health chief executive Robyn Lawrence on Thursday, May 30, due to significant demand on beds and staff.

Flinders and Upper North Local Health Network chief executive officer Craig Packard said that Category 1 and some Category 2 surgeries would continue as planned in Whyalla and Port Augusta to ensure that patients were still able to undergo urgent procedures.

"We have opened all available hospital beds, maximised out of hospital care options and paused Category 3 and some Category 2 elective surgery at our hospitals in Port Augusta and Whyalla," Mr Packard said.

"This will help free up more beds so suitable patients from our communities who have been receiving treatment in Adelaide can be transferred here over coming days and continue their care closer to home."

SA Health reported that as of May 31 there had been an increase of COVID-19 cases, to 1,906 in the past week, in comparison to 1,528 the previous week.

Members of the public were also informed that if they tested positive to COVID-19 with a Rapid Antigen Test they did not need to follow up with a PCR test.

Those who are most vulnerable to COVID-19 were also encouraged to have a plan with their Gp to access PCR testing and antiviral treatments in the event they develop symptoms.

"Our hospitals remain open to care, however we would ask that people with non-urgent conditions explore alternative care first including your GP, Pharmacist, calling healthdirect or using a virtual care service," Mr Packard added.

"We manage absences safely and thank our hardworking staff for their support."

Talking about cats, dogs

SAM LOWE

PORT PIRIE - Community engagement plays a significant role in the delivery of services from councils to constituents.

A high level of engagement in Port Pirie has been highlighted by the Port Pirie Regional Council in regards to the Dog and Cat Management Plan 2024-2029.

Thirty-one submissions were made over the month-long community consultation process, and while there have been no changes made to the draft plan, the council highlighted the significance of community engagement.

Council's director of development and regulation, Chris Davey, said regardless of the fact there were no changes, it was important to provide the opportunity for communication and engagement with the community.

"After a review of all submissions was undertaken it was deemed appropriate that no amendments would be recommended to the council in relation to the previously presented Draft Dog and Cat Management Plan 2024-2029," he said.

"In summary a majority of the feedback was related to the specific management of cats that will be covered by council's Cats By-law soon to be enacted, along with other business as usual regulatory functions already being undertaken by the council as described within the Dog and Cat Management Act, 1995.

"Each individual respondent was provided with a response containing a brief explanation on what would be, or is currently being implemented, to address each respondent's specific feedback in relation to the plan.

"This direct feedback provided to each respondent will allow any future conversations or information to be exchanged relating to council's Dog and Cat Management.

"We thank the community for all the responses received and taking the time to provide input into this process, even though no changes were undertaken it did provide the opportunity to better inform and engage with our community on the current activities already being undertaken."

The Dog and Cat Management Plan 2024-2029 aimed to continue to promote responsible house pet ownership, while also ensuring public safety and enhancing community amenities and environment.

The plan also harnesses the benefits of dog and cat ownership and ensures that the expenditure of registration fees addresses domestic dog and cat issues.

Under Section 33 of the Dog and Cat Management Act 1995, all dogs must be registered by three months of age.

Registration is to be renewed annually at the start of each financial year and discounts are offered, with evidence provided, for pensioner concession, desexed and microchipped, puppies under six months of age, working dogs, and accredited dogs (such as guide and assistance dogs).

Unlike dogs, cats are not issued a cat registration number; however, cats are recorded within Dogs and Cats Online (DACO) by microchip number and no registration fee is applicable.

Notifications are still issued each financial year to remind people to ensure their contact details are up to date.

Frogs are in focus

REGION - Green Adelaide and Landscape Boards across the state have partnered on the FrogWatch SA Seasonal Census to encourage citizen science and gather frog data in the first week of every season – starting with this winter.

Amphibians are the most endangered group of animals in the world.

More than 41 per cent of the world's amphibian species are currently threatened with extinction.

Data like frog call recordings are crucial to monitoring their population.

A recent review of the state's frog call recordings highlighted that everyday people contribute this data in large numbers to perfectly complement government monitoring programs.

Green Adelaide Board presiding member, Professor Chris Daniels, said he encouraged everyone interested to take part in the census and get involved in citizen science programs.

"Frogs are a vital part of many of our ecosystems," Professor Daniels said.

"They're a natural pest controller by eating insects, and an important food source for their predators.

"They're also a great indicator of ecosystems.

"They're sensitive to pollution, so if we find their numbers decreasing in an area, it's a sign that the whole ecosystem is in trouble.

"You don't have to be an expert to contribute to science! Anyone with a smartphone or computer can record frog calls via the FrogSpotter smartphone app or FrogWatch SA website.

"You'll be helping us understand how frogs and their ecosystems are tracking."

All of the collected data will be analysed by experts to monitor frog populations and health.

Uploads to the FrogSpotter app or website are added to state and national databases to be used by scientists, ecologists and conservation experts.

FrogWatch SA will share the amount of frog calls achieved and interesting findings they gain from the data.

To find out more information about the project, or to get involved, visit the FrogWatch SA website.

Brightening up the streets in Whyalla

JACK O'HALLORAN

WHYALLA - One Whyalla local has decided to add a splash of colour around town, decorating stobie poles along Schulz Avenue.

Ebonee Bianca North was inspired to start painting stobie poles in her neighbourhood after she noticed how much difference the artwork made in other areas.

"I was going for walks every night a few months ago and saw the posts painted on Bastian Crescent … the painted posts made such a big difference to their neighbourhood, and I wanted that for my street," Ms North said.

"It's also been a good way for me to feel like I'm doing something constructive for the community while work has been quiet lately."

Ms North said the community response to her artwork had all been positive, especially from the local school children who walk down her street to get to school.

She said she would usually spend one day preparing the stobie poles with a white undercoat, which created a sense of anticipation among the children as to what the artwork would be.

"The kids walking past that go to Hincks… they all look forward to seeing what's next on their walks," she said.

Ms North said that her son Bailey, 13, had also been a huge help in painting the art.

"Bailey has learnt what it is to give back to the community and how good it feels to see others happy and benefiting from the artworks that we have both done together... he is a massive help," she said.

The artwork coincides with the 100th anniversary of the first stobie pole being built on South Terrace, Adelaide, in 1924.

Stobie poles were invented by James Cyril Stobie following a timber shortage, and have remained a South Australian icon ever since.

Ms North was inspired to paint stobie poles by other local art that she saw. 410541

Picture: EBONEE BIANCA NORTH

Often considered an eyesore, legendary Australian artist Ann Newmarch saw the stobie poles of Prospect as a blank canvas, thus pioneering the stobie pole art project in 1983.

Now, Ms North hopes her artwork will inspire others in Whyalla to do the same.

She said she was happy to paint other neighbourhood's stobie poles for a donation.

"I think it would be great to see more people painting them to brighten the town up," she said.

Cross country for charity

LACHLAN SMITH

REGION - Nick Ashill set off on a 4000 kilometre run, from Western Australia to New South Wales, to help people dealing with respiratory diseases such as asthma.

Last week Mr Ashill ran through Port Augusta and Port Pirie on his way from Cottesloe Beach in WA, to Bondi Beach, in NSW.

Beginning his journey on April 14, he is expecting to make it to the final destination by June 29.

Mr Ashill began his running campaigns in 2017, when he crossed the United States to raise awareness of a disease of the lungs called pulmonary fibrosis.

His inspiration came from dealing with the loss of his mother to the illness in 2015.

He was 80 per cent into the run when he was involved in a hit and run accident which left him in hospital for five months.

"I had to learn to walk again…I had done that and in 2022 I got my body fit enough to go back to the United States to finish the last 20 per cent," Mr Ashill said.

Once he had finished the run, he thought he had finished with running until he began to hear stories of young New Zealanders suffering different respiratory diseases.

"I thought 'I have got another cross country run in me' and the idea of running across was born," Mr Ashill said.

He decided to champion the not-for-profit organisation, the New Zealand Asthma and Respiratory Foundation.

He said the Foundation carried out great work with advocacy, education and supporting scientific research and was the country's leading laboratory on respiratory disease and they pushed for changes in legislation.

"They work closely with the government number one, number two they deliver some fantastic educational program within schools to educate children about what respiratory illnesses are and how to manage it effectively," Mr Ashill said.

"The third thing is organisations that carry out scientific research in regard to improving the health outcomes for Kiwis the figures are staggering and they are not much better in Australia."

Runner Nick Ashill and his support crew in Paul Wheeler have been making their way across Australia to fundraise for the New Zealand Asthma and Respiratory Foundation to help continue scientific research around these illnesses.

Mr Ashill said one in seven New Zealanders will suffer from a respiratory condition.

"More than 700,000 individuals have been estimated to cost in excess of $7 billion New Zealand dollars each year," he said.

"That is the cost associated with respiratory illness so if I can play a role, it is a very small role but if I can play a role in generating more awareness of what the foundation does and at the same time raise money then I will be delighted."

Mr Ashill's friend Paul Wheeler has joined him as support crew on this journey.

"He is a phenomenal guy… he also ran across the United States and he knows what it is about," Mr Ashill said.

Mr Ashill has had people join him along the way which has included the 1200km across the Nullabor.

Another friend from Wellington, New Zealand would be joining him and will continue to run until the two make it to Bondi Beach.

Mr Ashill is running 60km a day, which is broken down in terms of four phases.

"Phase one is what I call breakfast which is normally 20km and then I meet up with the RV and consume my breakfast," Mr Ashill said.

"Then I do another 18km and that is leg two, then leg three is normally about 12km and leg four is normally about 8km and so that gives me around 60km each day."

Mr Ashill said the journey had been amazing, and he had seen a lot of wildlife along the way, which included dingoes, kangaroos and emus.

Mr Ashill began running in 30 to 32 degree heat when he started in Perth and now the temperatures have continued to decrease.

"It is an amazing country, I knew it was very isolated and barren so that is the biggest difference between Australia and America, there is a lot more isolation in Australia," Mr Ashill said.

"Truckies and passing motorists have been absolutely amazing, they pull up when they see you, many have stopped to ask more about my story."

Mr Ashill said he was humbled by the support from people who have made donations on the side of the road.

He had reached $8000 in fundraising at the start of the week.

Mr Ashill has a website www.nickrunsaustralia.org.nz, a Facebook page and an Instagram page where he is posting everyday and people can follow his progress.

Patch of theatre ready to surprise students

REGION - Patch Theatre will bringing the magic of theatre to classrooms across the Mid North in June with its show, Spark: Glow and Tell.

That tour comes following the successful completion of the May performances in the Yorke Peninsula.

Across the Far North and Yorke Peninsula, performances will be staged in regional classrooms of 23 schools, including Roxby Downs Area School and Maree Aboriginal School, to reach a total of 1500 students from preschool to year six, from June 3-14.

State Education Minister Blair Boyer will join the tour in Andamooka and Roxby Downs on Wednesday, June 12.

Mr Boyer said ensuring children and young people, regardless of where they lived, had the opportunity to experience the arts was important.

"I am really pleased that Patch has prioritised access of live theatre for students that live in remote regions as it provides them with different learning opportunities and experiences," Mr Boyer said.

Within an inflatable tent, Glow and Tell works its magic as it transforms a typical classroom into an intimate performance space.

Students will begin by watching artists illustrate glowing UV light tales and will go on to create their own glowing artworks.

Performers Edgell Junior Edgell and Evyenia Stefanidis, have each crafted performances based on their personal experience.

Edgell recounts a story about his cousin embarking on an adventure in Vanuatu while Evyenia shares her Greek heritage as she narrates a story about her little sister's birthday at the beach.

Creative producer Sasha Zahra said Glow and Tell offered students an immersive experience in their own classrooms.

"This beautiful work seamlessly blends arts, science, and literacy through Patch's unique style, providing students with a space to contemplate diverse stories and backgrounds," Ms Zahra said.

"Taking the show out to regional areas is particularly important to us and returning to the Yorke Peninsula after over 10 years, adds an extra layer of excitement."

St Marks weaves, learns

PORT PIRIE - Saint Mark's College Port Pirie hosted a number of activities for Reconciliation Week where students in Years 4 to 6 worked with three Indigenous artists in class workshops learning the art of weaving.

Each piece the students created was pulled into a collaborative piece by the artists.

The weaving workshop was held with Indigenous artists and Moandik sisters, Sonya, Suzy and Sarah of Wurtati Creations, where the art of weaving has been passed down through the sister's family.

School captain Braxton Camporeale said Sonya, Suzy and Sarah from Murray Bridge visited the college to help students with weaving.

"My favourite part was when we got to talk to Sarah and learn how to do the weaving with my unexperienced skills, which I really enjoyed doing," he said.

"I also quite liked learning that Raffa, which was [the] material that we used to make the small art piece, is from Madagascar in Africa.

"I didn't mind how mine turned out, but [the] people on my table were better than mine."

Braxton said he really enjoyed the experience.

"The experience was awesome and exciting, we first got to learn where Raffa came from and how they made baskets back in the days," he said.

"Then we got told how to weave it through the starter and what to do when we finished one colour to put the next colour and how to change to another starter which I was able to get a lot done."

School captain Madison Burford said her favourite part was when she created a small art piece out of Raffa leaves from Madagascar in Africa.

"I liked the dyed Raffa, purple and red, mine wasn't too bad," she said.

"I also really liked having a chat to Suzy, she taught me a lot about the weaving skills and some a bit off topic, but I had a really great time.

"She helped when I messed up and I thought you couldn't fix [it], but she did.

"On behalf of [the] St Mark's College community, we would like to say a huge thank you for your time and effort you put into the weaving classes that you held.

"Thank you for your commitment and patience for our unexperienced weaving skills. "Hopefully in the future some of us will be able to embrace this wonderful gift.

"Thanks for sharing your culture with our college community. Hope to see you again sharing some more of your creative talent, thank you."

Every student's woven piece forms part of the piece entitled 'Connected Flow'.

The college looks forward to adding the Nukunu and Moandik wording to its final title.

The opportunity for the workshop was through the Carclew Nunga Arts Program.

Secondary students were also visited by Scott Darlow, a passionate Indigenous educator and musician. Scott has visited St Marks College on many occasions and he has always presented a powerful and engaging presentation to the students, including music and culture.

Battle to provide support

SERGEANT MATTHEW BICKERTON

CULTANA - Soldiers could be less likely to succumb to battlefield injuries thanks to a new manoeuvrable surgical medical-treatment facility that operates closer to the frontline.

Deployed on Exercise Rhino Run at Cultana Training Area in May, the Role 2 Basic facility fits into two 6m containers and can be situated as far forward as a combat service support team.

It can receive patients within an hour of set-up and reach full surgical capability within three hours.

In contrast, a fully operational Role 2 Enhanced facility can take up to four days to establish.

Medical officer Captain Max Fulton, of 3rd Health Battalion, said they could provide life-saving treatments where and when needed most.

"We have nine types of damage-control surgeries we are comfortable performing here with the equipment we have," he said.

"Procedures that buy time for typical injuries sustained in large-scale combat operations."

The facility comprises four purpose-built tents in a cross configuration.

Patients are cleared through a control point and then taken to the resuscitation bay where they receive immediate treatment.

From there, they proceed to surgery if required, followed by the ward for observations.

"It's crucial to get patients stabilised enough before transferring them to a higher-level facility," Captain Fulton said.

The Role 2 Basic can manage resuscitation for two priority-one casualties, accommodate one patient in surgery while caring for two ICU patients in the ward, and has five low-dependency beds.

Known for its dusty landscape, Cultana Training Area hosted the 9 Brigade-led Exercise Rhino Run.

Nursing officer Captain Chanel Aguilar, of 3rd Health Battalion, said a challenge in the Role 2 Basic's operation was minimising infection.

"It's not just dust from the environment or people walking in and out, but patients who've come from the field," she said.

The substantial cleaning load requires all clinicians to take dual roles in maintaining the facility's hygiene.

The hospital deploys a sterilisation department to ensure continuous sterilisation of equipment, while antibiotics help manage infections.

"We accept a greater degree of risk being so far forward, but if we didn't do the surgery here, our patients could die," Captain Fulton said.

The Role 2 Basic creates a stop-gap, according to Captain Aguilar, which brings surgery forward to critical parts of the battlefield.

"It's aimed at damage-control resuscitation and damage-control surgery rather than prolonged preservation surgeries," she said.

Initially scheduled for completion by 2025, the Role 2 Basic concept came online two years early by using new and legacy equipment.

"We've proved the concept works and that we are a tool that keeps people in the fight," Captain Aguilar said.

Captain Fulton said they were invested in having something mobile.

"We want soldiers to know we want to be as close to them as possible, giving them that opportunity for life-saving surgery," Captain Fulton said.

Genes growing grain yields

A new study from the University of Adelaide has discovered a way to alter molecular pathways that control wheat-flowering to achieve greater yields.

The gene called Photoperiod-1 (Ppd-1) is used regularly by breeders to ensure wheat crops flower and set grain earlier in the season, avoiding the conditions of summer.

By examining genes whose expression is influenced by Ppd-1, University of Adelaide's School of Agriculture, Food and Wine Future Fellow Doctor Scott Boden's research team discovered two transcription factors that could be edited to influence the number and arrangement of grain-bearing spikelets that form on a wheat ear, as well as the timing of ear emergence.

Dr Boden said while the Ppd-1 variation benefitted wheat productivity by aligning pollination and grain development with more favourable environmental conditions, it penalised yield by reducing the number of grain-bearing florets and spikelets that form on the wheat inflorescence.

"The deletion of one transcription factor, called ALOG1, increases branching in both wheat and barley, which normally form unbranched inflorescences, and suggests that this gene could be a major regulator of unbranched spikes in the Triticeae family of crops," he said.

"The knowledge gained will inform breeders about gene targets of Ppd-1, for which we can use genetic diversity to design genotypes that might yield better."

New research study could grow grain yields. 359075

Picture: FILE

German researchers discovered a similar effect for the ALOG1 transcription factors in barley, which provided clues to the evolution of unbranched wheat and barley inflorescences, relative to those of rice and corn which display a more elaborate branching pattern.

Dr Boden's research team has furthered its work with field trials at the University's Research Enclosure to test for performance of the gene-edited lines under field conditions.

Dr Boden said wheat contributed 20 per cent of calories and protein to the human diet, and scientists and breeders needed to find ways to increase yields of wheat by between 60 to 70 per cent by 2050 to maintain food security for the growing global population.

"Studies like ours are particularly important because they provide a list of gene targets that can be used with new technologies, such as transformation and gene editing, to generate new diversity that may help improve crop productivity," he said.

"We anticipate our research will lead to further discoveries of genes that control spikelet and floret development in wheat, and in doing so, benefit the development of strategies for improving the yield potential of wheat."

Mel's medical marvel

Melissa Leong's new project, The Hospital: In the Deep End, might seem like an unusual next step for the devout foodie. But as she tells Siobhan Duck, filming the SBS docuseries was a profoundly personal and enlightening experience

Doctor's orders: Samuel Johnson, Melissa Leong and Costa Georgiadis witness the goings on inside Sydney's St Vincent's Hospital.

MELISSA Leong relishes being thrown in the deep end. That's what drove her to take on the high-profile job of hosting MasterChef Australia in 2019. It was also the reason she left the cooking juggernaut last year.

Excited to start a new adventure, Leong was puzzled by the reaction to her departure from MasterChef.

"Different outlets chose to report on my change in career – or my expansion of my career – as a negative thing, because they really didn't understand who I am or what I'm capable of," she shrugs.

"I need to give myself the space to explore what I can do next. I am so grateful for every lesson I learned and everything that I gained from being on MasterChef, it was one of the great highlights of my life and my career. It will always be such a shining light in my life. But I am someone who thrives on momentum; who thrives in discomfort and learning from growth."

Leong certainly practices what she preaches. While hosting Dessert Masters is very much in step with what people know and love about her, two more recent roles have been a complete change of pace.

First there was her unexpected stint hosting an episode of UFC show Fight Week for Fox Sports and Kayo. Who knew Leong loved cage fighting as much as she adores food?

And now, Leong is broadening her horizons yet again with The Hospital: In the Deep End.

The three-part SBS factual series sees Leong, together with actor Samuel Johnson and gardening guru Costa Georgiadis, working alongside healthcare professionals in Sydney's St Vincent's Hospital.

"I'm a big believer in putting yourself outside of your comfort zone because I think that's where we grow the most," she explains.

"I think it's where we become more of ourselves. And so why not say yes to an opportunity like this, especially one involving Sam and Costa. I mean, what tremendous people to be going on this ride with."

Apart from offering a fresh test, this series was also personal for Leong.

"My mother has spent 54 years in the medical industry," Leong enthuses proudly.

"She just turned 70 and she's still working in the industry now. She refuses to retire.

"So, she actually started training become a nurse at 16 in Singapore and then eventually moved to Australia and became an RN [registered nurse] and then the nurse unit manager and now a hospital administrator."

Following in her mum's medical footsteps is Leong's brother, who graduated as a doctor last year.

"So, I'm the non-medical black sheep of the family," she laughs.

While Leong was growing up, her mother worked night shifts so that "there was always a parent around to take care of us".

A decade of those years was spent working in emergency where, Leong says her mum "would experience all kinds of crazy things because that department after dark is a very complex and intense place, as I now understand firsthand."

Although her mother has always shared stories about her work with Leong, the food writer was eager to better understand exactly "what my mother sacrificed or where she went at night when we were asleep as children".

Although she went into the experience with plenty of sage advice from family and friends, Leong says nothing prepared her for the sensory overload of a shift in the emergency department.

"It's always good to have context in the back of your head and hear anecdotal stories of things people go through," she says.

"I have friends who are in the medical profession as well. So, I do hear lots of different stories but it's a different thing entirely to witness it with your own eyes – especially in surgery or emergency where the 'bat phone' will ring, and you have someone rushed in who is in a life-threatening state.

> "IT'S A DIFFERENT THING ENTIRELY TO WITNESS IT WITH YOUR OWN EYES – ESPECIALLY IN SURGERY OR EMERGENCY

"People are so quick to figure out what's going on, in order to hopefully save this person's life."

Leong drew on the skills she has honed as a presenter and well-travelled food writer to stay centred in the chaos and focused on drawing stories from the people she met within the hospital.

It helped too, she says, to have Johnson and Georgiadis by her side. Like Leong, both Johnson and Georgiadis have deeply personal connections to the hospital, which have also sparked their curiosity about what goes on behind the scenes.

Georgiadis was the primary carer for his father until he passed away in St Vincent's palliative care ward. Johnson was by his sister Connie's side throughout her battle with breast cancer and then found himself relying on the public healthcare system to get him back on his eet after he was hit by a car three years ago.

"Being next to Sam and Costa; two people who are known in Australia as being wholehearted beings and emotionally articulate, present people, I felt so lucky to be in their company," she enthuses. "I mean to be in the same conversation as these two tremendous human beings is something that I find quite humbling."

Leong's experiences on The Hospital haven't made her eager to retrain as a nurse. But she hasn't ruled out a complete career change in the future, smiling, "I think about the law a lot. And that may still be on the cards for me."

"What is life for if not for expanding our perspectives and our experiences?" she ponders.

"And not everything we attempt is going to be successful, but I'm a big believer (especially the older I get) that you learn more from failure than you do from succeeding.

"It all enriches the human experience. So, I'm collecting experiences, whether that's travel or work experiences or education and academics. It's all part of it.

"I want to live a life with no regrets in that regard."

Movie Guide

PICK OF THE WEEK

Mind over matter: Eleven-year-old Riley (Kaitlyn Dias) and her larger-than-life emotions.

Saturday
INSIDE OUT
Nine, 7.30pm, PG (2015)

This touching tale proves why the brilliant minds at Pixar (fond of releasing sequels to their hits – think Cars, Toy Story, Finding Nemo and as of June 13, Inside Out 2) should embrace new stories more often. Like all the animation studio's best work, Inside Out will appeal to kids and grown-ups alike. The film is set inside the mind of young girl Riley (voiced by Kaitlyn Dias), whose emotions – Joy, Anger, Fear, Sadness and Disgust (Amy Poehler, Lewis Black, Bill Hader, Phyllis Smith and Mindy Kaling) – are struggling to adjust after her family moves across the country. Joy, their leader, tries to keep the mood positive while things spiral into a bad place as Riley struggles to adjust to her new life. Pixar is back to its brilliant best with this charming, clever and heartfelt animation. ★★★★

THE TIME TRAVELLER'S WIFE
Nine, Friday, 8.30pm, PG (2009)

This adaptation of Audrey Niffenegger's popular novel explores the idea that two people destined to be together will always find each other. Chicago librarian Henry DeTamble (Eric Bana) has a genetic disorder that causes him to involuntarily travel through time, but somehow manages to build a relationship with artist Clare Abshire (Rachel McAdams, pictured with Bana). Her fate is both lonely and wondrous – her lover can come to her and then be whisked away without notice. ★★★★

RIDE LIKE A GIRL
ABC Entertains, Friday, 8.30pm, PG (2019)

An incredible true Australian story of courage, determination and strength, this triumphant biopic captures how Michelle Payne overcame the odds to become the first female jockey to win the Melbourne Cup – and the nation's heart – with Prince of Penzance in 2015. A Discovery of Witches star Teresa Palmer imbues Payne with grit and gumption as she clashes with her racehorse trainer father Paddy (Sam Neill, pictured with Palmer) and fights for her place in the wider racing community. ★★★★

THE SECRETS WE KEEP
SBS World Movies, Saturday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2020)

Life in 1950s America, replete with women in gorgeous dresses and vintage cars, looks lush, but there's an Hitchock-esque thriller about to bombard this American Dream. In a puzzle-like story, Noomi Rapace (pictured) plays Romanian-born housewife Maja. When she comes across a familiar man (The Killing's Joel Kinnaman), who brings back traumatic memories of the war, her husband Lewis (Chris Messina) is suddenly flung into her tragic story – and discovers a man tied up in their house. ★★★★

MAIGRET
SBS World Movies, Sunday, 8.30pm, M (2022)

Ensconced in shadows and the tender sadness of French icon Gérard Depardieu's (pictured) pipe-smoking detective, this adaptation of the classic mystery novels from Georges Simenon – akin to a French Sherlock Holmes – is film noir at its polished best. Glimmering with opulent, moody 1950s sets and gorgeous costumes, celebrated French director Patrice Leconte's (The Girl on the Bridge) slow-moving crime mystery centres on Maigret's investigation into a 20-year-old orphan's murder. ★★★

DEN OF THIEVES
9Go!, Monday, 8.30pm, MA15+ (2018)

An elite unit of the LA County Sheriff's Department and California's most successful bank robbery crew go head-to-head in this gritty crime saga. Gerard Butler is 'Big Nick' O'Brien, the hard-drinking leader of the 'good' guys, while Pablo Schreiber (pictured) is recently paroled Outlaws leader Ray Merrimen, who has an elaborate plan for a heist on the city's Federal Reserve. The tension between the pair threatens to explode at any moment and makes for a gripping battle. ★★★★

STAR TREK INTO DARKNESS
Nickelodeon, Tuesday, 8.30pm, M (2013)

In this 12th voyage of the beloved franchise, the visual splendour and dark tone are amped up for an action-packed thrill ride. In the second feature from J.J. Abrams (Star Wars: The Rise of Skywalker), Benedict Cumberbatch (pictured) joins the fantasy in a poignant portrayal of iconic villain Khan Noonien Singh. With an emphasis on style, this crowd-pleaser sees the action taking place during the Enterprise crew's younger years, with the fleet on a mission to seize a weapon of mass destruction. ★★★★

YOUR WEEKLY TV GUIDE

PICK OF THE WEEK

WHAT'S ON THE BOX?

THE HOSPITAL: IN THE DEEP END
SBS, Thursday, 8.40pm

Like a shot to the heart, this surprising and emotional series strikes where it matters most. In an admirable endeavour to celebrate the high-stakes work of hospital staff at a crucial time when our health system is cracking under the pressure, three well-known celebrities spend an eye-opening week at St Vincent's Hospital Sydney. Across three riveting and often hard-to-witness episodes, much-loved actor Samuel Johnson, Dessert Masters judge Melissa Leong and Gardening Australia's passionate host Costa Georgiadis (pictured, from left) get first-hand experience of what life is like in one of Australia's busiest hospitals as they help staff and meet patients in a moving and personal exposé of our medical system.

THE STRANGE CHORES
ABC Family, Friday, 7.50pm

For the young kids who got their stellar TV initiation with one of the most-loved animations ever, this series is their next obsession. From Bluey's Charlie Aspinwall and Daley Pearson comes this adventure primed for those who have graduated from "keepy uppy" balloons to supernatural monster slaying (that's eight to 12-year-old territory, in case you're wondering). Now back with season three of wholesomely kooky, creepy adventures, animated teens Charlie, Pierce and ghost girl Que (all pictured, from left) take on their next level of training by doing the monsters' chores, such as delivering party invitations for Dracula and stealing a dragon's tooth. It brims with clever dialogue and bizarre situations.

SPICKS AND SPECKS
ABC TV, Sunday, 7.30pm

Like a band that keeps jumping on stage for another encore, this beloved music quiz show has become skilled at cheeky returns. After its heyday stint from 2005 until 2011, the 2014 short and sweet relaunch, themed specials and the COVID-era 2021 season, 2024 can be ticked on the music-loving history pages as another Spicks and Specks year. Host Adam Hills and competing team captains Myf Warhurst and Alan Brough (pictured, left, with Hills and Warhurst) welcome a throng of interesting guests and exciting musical acts. From outspoken personality Abbie Chatfield and comedians Hamish Blake and Steph Tisdell, to TISM, DMA'S and Lime Cordiale, the beauty is you needn't know any of them to enjoy the rollicking fun buzz.

HUNT FOR TRUTH: TASMANIAN TIGER
SBS, Wednesday, 7.30pm

Filmmaker and journalist Tim Noonan (pictured) brings his unflappable exuberance and gung-ho curiosity to this new two-part series which boldly investigates whether the Tasmanian Tiger is still alive. It's possibly the world's most elusive and intriguing animal – kind of like our own Loch Ness monster but with the considerable benefit of being real – and his search makes for a great adventure that spans conspiracy theories and tiger treasure hunters. Working with scientists from the University of Tasmania, a trove of hidden cameras is set up to hopefully catch the carnivorous marsupial action.

TRAILBLAZERS
Streaming, Stan

In the lead-up to Aussie women's soccer team the Matildas' mission to finally nab the sport's first Australian Olympic medal at the Paris 2024 games, this humble, educational and eye-opening documentary warmly traces the team's no-frills beginnings and their meteoric rise to stardom.

Hosting last year's FIFA Women's World Cup saw the buzz around the talented Tillies grow, as the whole nation hummed with enthusiasm and pride, drawing a gob-smacking 11-and-a-half million viewers for their semi-final clash against England.

Incredibly, it was the most-watched TV program in Australian history, in what is a stunning turnaround for a team that struggled for recognition or support in their early days.

From a post-World War I ban on women playing soccer for more than 50 years to Matildas' players resorting to men's hand-me-down uniforms and a controversial calendar, the game's ascent is attentively outlined, presenting compelling insights which honour the tenacity and passion that paved the way for the stars of today.

Featuring relaxed interviews with current players including Sam Kerr, Ellie Carpenter and Mary Fowler, this doco, created by an all-female production, affectionately shines a light on pioneering athletes such as first Indigenous female player Karen Menzies and first-ever Matildas captain Julie Dolan, who are wry, generous and honest.

A treat for fans and newcomers alike, you'll be galvanised and excited for the Matildas' future after relishing this fervent little feature.

FALLEN IDOLS: NICK AND AARON CARTER
Streaming from Saturday, Binge

Released amid boy-bander Nick Carter's court battle with his accusers, this wild docuseries is ruefully engrossing. It's a shocking insight into the #MeToo movement and the dysfunction of the Backstreet Boy's family. Peddling a one-sided narrative with fast-paced gusto, it also highlights his late brother Aaron's (pictured, left, with Nick) drug-induced diatribes.

HIT MAN
Streaming from Friday, Netflix

Filmmaker Richard Linklater seduces with this bright neo-noir crime showcasing Glen Powell (pictured) as Gary, an undercover hit man who lets romance get in the way of the job. The Top Gun: Maverick star cements his magnetism in this perfectly paced, deftly dark thriller. With a love interest played by Andor's Adria Arjona, this layered lark hits all the right spots.

MOTHER'S INSTINCT
Streaming from Friday, Prime Video

Oscar-winners Anne Hathaway and Jessica Chastain (both pictured) steer this glossy psycho thriller to an unnerving precipice. The directorial debut of cinematographer Benoît Delhomme, whose CV includes The Theory of Everything and Lawless, this '60s-set story fixates on neighbours whose bond erodes after one of their young sons dies.

CLIPPED
Streaming,Star on Disney+

Based on the real-life scandal involving the NBA's LA Clippers, this six-part series shoots for an alley-oop. Modern Family's Ed O'Neill (pictured with Jacki Weaver and Cleopatra Coleman) is memorable as team owner Donald Sterling, with Laurence Fishburne almost stealing his thunder as steely coach Doc Rivers. This lively story of race and class is engrossing.

LET THE CANARY SING
Streaming, Paramount+

You may not be an ardent Cyndi Lauper fan, but this spirited celebration of her career, positive impact and unique outlook will change your tune. The 'Girls Just Wanna Have Fun' singer is devotedly lauded in this doco from Aussie Alison Ellwood which not only features the outspoken artist herself, but a gaggle of fancy friends, including Boy George.

SEAMAN RESCUED FROM DROWNING

PROBABLY the happiest people in Whyalla today are the officers and crew of the Scottish vessel, "Garryvale," who will return shortly to their native land after an absence of more than two and a half years.

The luckiest is seaman, J. Patterson, who at about 8 o'clock on Wednesday night, was rescued from drowning by the Harbor Master, Captain McLuckie.

Captain McLuckie was on board the launch and Patterson, who was sitting in the stern was waiting to board the "Garry-vale."

As the launch palled alongside Patterson was missing.

In response to calls "Garryvale" played a spotlight over the water and Patterson was noticed about 100 yards away.

The launch immediately turned for Patterson who was too far gone to grasp a lifebuoy.

Captain McLuckie immediately dived in and held Patterson whilst the lifebuoy was hauled alongside the launch.

Artificial respiration was applied as the launch raced back to the wharf.

An ambulance rushed Patterson to hospital where he is reported to be suffering from shock.

The crew of "Garryvale" will be relieved today.

Forty five new members are expected to arrive by bus this afternoon.

They were flown out from Scotland by a specially chartered Tudor aircraft.

The old crew will leave over the weekend and will return to Scotland by the plane.

SEMI TRAILER OVERTURNS WITH 10 TONS OF FLOUR

A spectacular accident occurred on Saturday night at the junction of Broadbent and Darling terraces when a semi trailer, loaded with 10 tons of floor, overturned, spilling its load onto the footpath.

The vehicle operated by Lee Transport Co., was extensively damaged about the cabin.

The driver, Herbert Schulz escaped with abrasions and shock and his wife escaped serious injury.

The occupants were extremely fortunate to have escaped so lightly as the cabin top of the vehicle was crushed in several feet leaving only a small area in the region of the driver's seat.

The semi trailer was travelling up Broadbent terrace and in making the turn into Darling terrace, travelled to the wrong side of the road and turned over.

The cargo of bags spilled over and many crashed against the wire fence surrounding the triangular plantation at the junction.

Several bags broke open, a telephone pole was bent over and wires hung along the footpath.

The manager of Lee Transport Co., in Whyalla, Mr. R, B. Lee said that the trailer of the vehicle was 24 feet long and was one of the hardest on the road to turn over.

The cargo of flour was a consignment to local bake houses.

An hour after the accident workmen from Lee Transport Co., had detached the trailer top from the rest of the vehicle and a crane from the company had righted the front portion.

GOVERNOR TO LAY FOUNDATION STONE

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Robert George and Lady George, will arrive in Whyalla on Friday, July 3 and remain until Monday, July 6.

During his stay His Excellency Will lay the foundation stone at the new St. Martin's Church of England.

The full programme is at present being drawn up for the approval of Government House.

Details will be released later.

Rev. A. R. Bowers said on Wednesday that the service would be held in the open air near the church at 3 p.m. on Sunday, July 5.

Mr. Bowers said representatives of the B.H.P., Whyalla Town Commission, the R-S-L. and other organisations would be invited to attend.

AROUND THE OVAL

Visiting footballers from Woomera will arrive late tonight and stay at the Whyalla Hotel. Quorn representatives will be located at the Hotel Spencer when they arrive on Saturday morning.

Port Augusta players are to return Saturday to their homes and come to Whyalla again Sunday.

J. Stock, South "B" grade player had the unpleasant experience of having his mouth plate with two teeth on it lodge in his throat. Hospital attention recovered the plate. Stock was retained for observation.

* * * *

Central club had a triumphant weekend. In all grades they had easy -wins.

They are on top of the League and Colts premiership tables and equal top in the "B's.

* * * *

South's defeat last week-end was their largest since July 1949 when North thrashed them 18.21 to 7.7.

It was also South's lowest score since they got 3.6 against North 7.3 in the opening game of 1951.

Talking on the phone last weekend Arthur Bishop, coach of Port Augusta, said his side will give Whyalla a shock tomorrow.

Whyalla will be favourites but we will win, he added.

As Bishop knows Whyalla's standard his optimism may be well founded.

Weekend scoring had many unique features.

Central and South created an all time one quarter low - one point each in the third quarter.

West and South were beaten by the same margin - 71 points.

Central kicked nine goals in the second quarter against South, as in the first series.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD; MAN INJURED

A woman was found dead, with a deep gash in her throat, and a man critically injured with a similar wound, in a house in Tassie Street, Port Augusta, at about 2 p.m. on Saturday.

Both had been respected citizens of Port Augusta for more than half a century and the tragedy ranks with the worst in the town's history.

The woman was Miss Amelia Rose Gibson (63), and the man, John Francis McMahon (70), of the same address.

They were the only occupants of the premises at the time.

Miss Gibson, who appeared to have been dead for some hours, was found lying in a bedroom.

A butcher's knife was also found in the room.

McMahon, who was a former well-known jockey and horse trainer, was admitted to the Port Augusta Hospital.

The house was entered after neighbors, who knew that Miss Gibson was subject to fits, became concerned when she did not attend to her usual office cleaning duties or appear about the premises.

Inspector S. A. Ross, Det. A. Palmer, PCC M. Stanford and Sgt. Mertin made enquiries and ascertained that McMahon and Miss Gibson were at a card evening until about 11 p.m. on Friday.

PC Wilkins of the local police staff took photos of the scene of the tragedy and outside the premises.

INQUEST ADJOURNED

At the Port Augusta Courthouse on Monday morning, the Coroner (Mr. T C. Chinnery, JP), opened an inquest in to the death of Miss Gibson.

After evidence of identification had been given the hearing was adjourned until July 9 at 10 a.m.

Inspector S. A. Ross appeared for the Commissioner of Police and to assist the Coroner.

MOVE FOR HOSTEL FOR OUTBACK CHILDREN

The Mayor (Mr. Lin Riches, MP) in the course of his report to the meeting of the Town Council on Monday night, said that in cooperation with a committee appointed to the Port Augusta District Committee of the SA Stockowners Association at its last meeting, he had presented a case to the Education Dept. for the establishment of a hostel at Port Augusta for the use of children from outback areas coming here to attend school.

The YWCA had intimated that it was prepared to conduct the hostel.

Mr. Riches added that it was impossible for children to obtain private or other board in Port Augusta, and the only alternative open to them was correspondence lessons

QUORN SHOW SOCIETY CONVENERS NOMINATED

At a meeting of the Quorn Show Society, held on April 27, conveners were nominated for the various sections.

The committee would appreciate the help of the persons named below and hopes that they will be able to attend the next meeting set down for June 15, when quite a deal of business will be discussed.

- Section A (Horses in Action), Messrs. C. Prettejohn, C. Pearee and N. C. Puss.
- (Section B (Sheep), Messrs. A. Francis, A. H. Voigt and O. McHugh.
- Section C (Wool), Messrs. L. Bury,A. Francis and C. Finlay.
- Section D (Dogs), Mr. W. Williams.
- Section E (Poultry): Messrs. G. Nelson, L. A. Stewart and J. Williams.
- Section F (Agriculture), Mr. J. McColl.
- Section G (Dairy Produce), Mr. P.W. Britza.
- Section H (Fruit and - Vegetables),Mr. G. A. Altmann.
- Section I (Plants and Flowers), Mr.and Mrs. Shuts.
- Section J (Miscellaneous), Mr. andMrs. K. Stewart.
- Section I, (for School Children only), Mr. Brideson and helpers.

NEW SECRETARY APPOINTED

At a meeting held on June 1, Mr. C. J. Easther was appointed secretary to replace the late Mr. M. G. Williams, who had held the position for some 30 years.

The committee appointed to canvas the town and district reported a good response to their overtures.

A suggestion was made that a sheep shearing competition be added to the programme this year.

The matter of securing timber for the building of sheep yards was discussed at length.

The committee was pleased at the appointment of a secretary.

The Society decided to help to provide the finance for the construction of much needed conveniences on the Quorn Oval.

CROWS STEAL MANY GOLF BALLS

For several weeks crows have been causing havoc at the Port Augusta golf course.

Last Saturday week the birds swooped down on 11 balls, picked them up, and flew away.

It is estimated that during that and the previous weekend, golf balls valued at £5 were stolen by the feathered robbers.

A member of the club, Mr. F. G. Pointon, decided that something would have to be done before the town's supply of golf balls ran out.

He set a rabbit trap with a ball on the plate that releases the spring and jaws of the trap.

A crow, on seeing a ball which appeared to be easy prey, had a closer look, but did not know what to make of the trap.

It flew away and returned with a companion.

Soon there was a number of birds around the trap.

All appeared afraid to make a move until at last one bird dashed towards the trap, pecked at the ball and was caught in the jaws.

The remainder hurriedly flew away in search of safer hunting grounds and have not returned.

Golfers hope that now they will only have bunkers and other hazards associated with the game to contend with.

REPAIRS TO PORT GERMEIN JETTY?

According to an announcement this week the State Government had allocated £200,000 for restoration of damage to suburban beaches in the recent storm, but no mention had been made of funds being provided for repairs to the jetty at Port Germein, Mr. E. H. D. Russell, said yesterday.

"I am most concerned that Port Germein has "been apparently left out of the scheme of things.

This popular resort has received a severe blow.

Many tourists use the promenade jetty and it is the venue for many fishermen," he said.

"I should like to see the local government authorities take up the matter of an allocation with the authorities. Port Germein is a progressive centre and deserves better."

EN FETE FOR CORONATION

Signs are not lacking that the City of Port Pirie is redolent with a loyal enthusiasm for the Coronation of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II.

Yesterday large congregations attended city and suburban churches in which intercessions were offered for the Queen as she prepares to undertake her onerous responsibility.

Coronation Day will open with emphasis on the spiritual significance of the occasion.

VotiveMass will be said at 8 a.m. at St. Paul's, at 10 a.m. there will be Solemn Pontifical Mass at St. Mark's Cathedral, and at the same time Pirie Ministers' Fraternal will conduct a civic service of loyalty and thanksgiving at the town hall.

CARNIVAL AT OVAL

B.H.A.S. Excelsior Hand will parade to Memorial Oval where a civic message of loyalty will be read by Mr. C. L. Davis (mayor) and D Company/48th Battalion will fire a ''leu-dc-joie" as the Union Jack floats free.

In a symbolic gesture 2,000 pigeons will be released, at the oval and the opening ceremony of the carnival will conclude with a marching display, by the band.

A comprehensive programme of close-packed interest will follow for the remainder of the day and patrons are assured of a novel and varied day's entertainment.

The R.S.L. have arranged a commemorative tree planting ceremony at 9.30 a.m. tomorrow on their block, and many local organisations have arranged functions to celebrate the Coronation.

2000 WATCH VARIED PROGRAMME

Alter lunch more than 2,000 people watched a capital programme of athletic and other entertainment at Memorial Oval, the attractions ranging from a full-scale soccer match to a solo dancing demonstration.

A three-mile scratch cycle race in the morning session drew 12 starters, and was won by C. Bairstow.

The Coronation Wheel Race, over two miles, was an attraction for the afternoon, and was won also by Bairstow. Who narrowly defeated Gordon Dietman.

The winner, who rode from the back mark, was presented with a silken, engraved pennant by the mayor after the race.

Two teams of High School lads gave an interesting exhibition of softball—a game that had not been seen publicly in Pirie.

Mr. R. B. Molloy explained the progress of the match.

Right on time, the junior footballers took the field after lunch, Proprietary playing Port and Solomontown combined, with John Willis (West Torrens and State forward) umpiring.

Proprietary won—6 goals 2 behinds to 4-7.

SCHOOL PARADE

The High School inter-house parade, with the four groups under their house colors, was one of the most spectacular events of the day.

Adjudicator for the march was Lieut. R. E. M. Stone, of 43rd/43 th Battalion (Hindmarsh Regiment).

Sprint and relay races and organised games completed a fine field offering, at the conclusion of which it was announced that Barker House had won the aggregate competition with 27 pts., with Stuart 23. Eyre 15, and Flinders 11.

A silken pennant was presented to the leaders of Barker House by the mayor.

The Caledonian dancing on the bandstand brought further variety.

With Piper Malcolm Taverner providing the music.

Evelyn Niemann, Iris and Elsie Boath, and Kay Robinson danced the Highland Fling, Ann McNulty and Shirley Messenger the Shean Trews, and Don Hall the sword dance.

To amplified music five of the six queens who took part in the recent Greek competition, including Miss Angela Christofis, performed two graceful folk dances.

FENCING DISPLAY

More than usual interest was displayed in a demonstration of the art of fencing by Messrs. Ron Gericke and Glenn Peake.

The cream-flannelled, gauntleted, and masked competitors gave the crowd a clear insight into the skill required in a bout, and each important movement was described by Mr. Max Ekins.

The long programme was concluded with a soccer match between the undefeated Savoy team and "'The Rest" of Pirie Soccer Association.

Officials and players had done much hard work in preparation for the match, including the erection of portable steel tube goals.

Savoy lived up to their reputation with a three-nil victory, and all players fully appreciated performing on the grassed area, though it was somewhat hard.

Events in the game were described by Mrf W. Cousins, jun.

It is expected the Community Swimming Pool Committee, which was responsible for the carnival will clear about £200.

HOROSCOPE by Lilith

Your week ahead

One of Gemini's jobs is being the messenger who connects people with each other. So enjoy this week's planetary quartet of Jupiter, Venus, Mercury and the Sun, all in the sign of the Twins, activating a magnificent melange of mixing and mingling...

ARIES
(Mar 21 - Apr 20)

With planetary motivator Mars moving into slow and sensible mode, you can finally tackle your to-do list without breaking the speed limit. Though if Mars still ratchets up stress levels, these are best soothed by savouring sensual pleasures and practical indulgences: luscious food, beautiful bedding, a holiday away in nature.
Best day:
Tuesday 11 June

TAURUS
(Apr 21 - May 20)

This week's red flag to Taurus Bulls arrives with headstrong Mars charging into your stubborn sign and provoking stand-offs where no one wants to back down. Focus on staying flexible and negotiable until the approaching Mercury/Venus alignment sets a more sympathetic stage for heartfelt discussions on touchy subjects.
Best day:
Friday 14 June

GEMINI
(May 21 - Jun 21)

With the loquacious combination of expressive Sun, articulate Mercury, chatty Venus and expansive Jupiter in your communicative sign, you're at your most compelling and charismatic, but beware of oversharing. Avoid the complexity of too much information. Simplicity is this week's mantra.
Best day:
Wednesday 12 June

CANCER
(Jun 22 - Jul 22)

There are some tricky planetary aspects this week, so it's advisable to be aware of how your fluctuating moods and responses are affecting others. And also worthwhile investigating Jomo: the Joy Of Missing Out, that feeling of being happy and content with just staying in and not engaging.
Best day:
Sunday 9 June

LEO
(Jul 23 - Aug 23)

Although you might have dramatic reactions to this week's avalanche of information, what it calls for is a measured and responsible response. In this rapidly changing world, the most effective way of meeting altered circumstances is an open, questioning attitude. So relax and look for the hidden opportunity.
Best day:
Monday 10 June

VIRGO
(Aug 24 - Sep 22)

Last week's new moon brought an influx of ideas and opportunities. This week's waxing moon in your own discerning sign is perfect (favourite Virgo word) for sorting and assessing what might be viable, also for checking if there's anything important you may have missed or overlooked.
Best day:
Thursday 13 June

LIBRA
(Sep 23 - Oct 23)

Gemini time is high season for shopping, and this week's planetary quartet suggests retail therapy for your home zone could be therapeutic. So why not enjoy spending this weekend's Libra moon revamping your entertainment area with a new plant, soft cushion, plushy throw rug or warm lighting...?
Best day:
Saturday 15 June

SCORPIO
(Oct 24 - Nov 22)

Staying curious could shift your perspective in a good way this week. But with everyone trading information, ideas and opinions, all talking up a storm and too much happening at once, honour your Scorpion instincts to withdraw and process, to filter and discriminate, to accept or reject.
Best day:
Sunday 9 June

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov 23 - Dec 21)

There's no shortage of satisfying, enlightening and inspiring sharing with others as this week makes interpersonal connection inescapable. Though be advised that an uneasy Mercury/Neptune alignment carries the strong recommendation to be extremely careful about disclosing sensitive or confidential information.
Best day:
Wednesday 12 June

CAPRICORN
(Dec 22 - Jan 20)

Been trying to solve a problem and keep ending up at the same place? Whether a frustrating argument or a business that's just not getting anywhere, this week's planetary face-offs suggest pressing pause to assess, and asking the necessary questions: is this really worth continuing and, if so, why?
Best day:
Friday 14 June

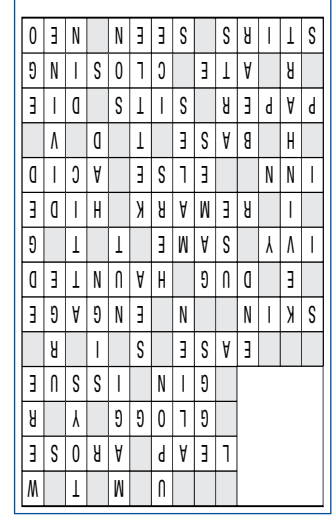

AQUARIUS
(Jan 21 - Feb 18)

This week's active planetary agenda is set to open up all sorts of interesting and stimulating possibilities. But there's no question it's also likely be mentally exhausting. Note to self? Slow down and get the balance of rest while your body takes on board all this new information.
Best day:
Saturday 15 June

PISCES
(Feb 19 - Mar 20)

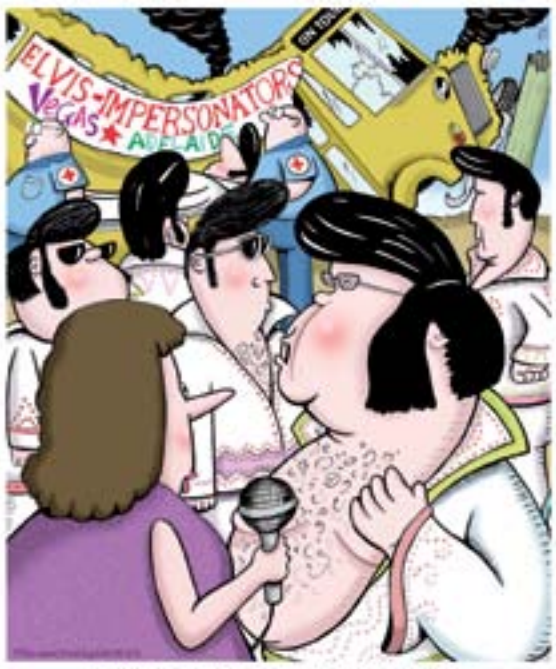

Venus and Neptune, both in dual signs and an odd alignment, may cause some confusion this week. But don't get discouraged if a project or relationship hits a plateau or glitch. Instead, think about what kind of small change you could make that might have a ripple effect.
Best day:
Thursday 13 June

Pontian determined

JOHN BELLIFEMINI

PORT PIRIE - The Northern Demons and Pontian Eagles showed how even they are in player personnel, but it was the better overall offensive home combination that survived the round 13 State League 2 fixture kicking two goals in each half at the Yalumba Drive Reserve last Saturday.

Pontian coach James Karatzas always had the upper hand over the Omar Hassan coached Reds and by all accounts was always the favored winning outfit as it won 4-0 and very convincingly to well prove its lofty second place level on the ladder.

And in Saturday's three games there were some 17 goals scored on the sunny afternoon with the main State League 2 encounter sharing qualities of incredible athletics from both camps.

It was Pontian's Fergus Shoemark that opened the scoring from outside the left Demons eighteen-yard box at the 24th minute and Alex Conteh made it 2-0 three minutes prior to halftime.

The second half was much of the same even though the Northern Demons challenged hard in bid of getting on the scoreboard and the Hassan coached Reds got chances as the round 13 fixture seemed well and truly in Pontian's control.

Number 30 Memphis kicking the ball to his teammate.

The home team was handed a favor at the 80th minute when the unlucky Joshua Koumtzis conceded an own goal stretching the lead to 3-0 and a late 90+7 Christian Mutsigna goal saw Pontian Eagles complete a strong 4-0 win and will challenge for top spot.

BEST PLAYERS: B Sciancalpore, M Lea'alafa, I Achan, J Koumitzis.

In the Reserves the Demons played out a 2-2 draw against the Pontian Eagles after leading 1-0 at halftime before three second half goals saw the contest finish 2-2, while in the Under 18 competition another nine goals found the net where the home team led 4-0 at the long break before the Reds clawed their way back only to lose 4-5.

PREVIEW

The Northern Demons league season continues to be an edgy one and this Saturday host the Port Adelaide Pirates at Byrne Park, who last week defeated Eastern United 4-1 in easy fashion whereas the Reds lost to Pontians comprehensively.

The Demons could not match Pontian Eagles smarts last week and again the league ladder presents logical opportunities to teams that could trouble the Demons in the run home to this season.

And while the Demons trailed all afternoon the Pirates led all day in a fine performance, while the Demons had previously lost 1-2 to Eastern United at home back in round 10.

Statistics do not back the Reds for this Saturday's contest especially after the Omar Hassan outfit failed to win against Port Adelaide in its postponed round three fixture that was forced under lights in Adelaide where it lost 1-2.

Nevertheless I liked how the Demons tackled last week's game against Pontian and surely the Pirates are not as good as the Reds previous opponent was.

Blue skies for first homing race

DAVID CUNNINGHAM

PORT PIRIE - The Port Pirie Homing Society conducted the first race of the 2024 season from Pimba, a distance of 235 kilometres to the winning loft on Saturday, June 1.

The pigeons were released at 9.30am in clear blue skies and an eight knot south easterly breeze blowing.

The winning pigeon, flown by Mark and Janet Moores on Weeroona Island, covered the distance in 3 hrs. 31 mins. to average 57 kilometres per hour for the race.

Results were as follows

- 1st. M. and J. Moores 4 hrs. 1 min. 23 secs. 976.265 metres per. minute
- 2nd. D. and B. Cunningham 4 hrs. 10 mins. 37 secs. 969.204 metres per. minute
- 3rd. H. Hofman 4 hrs. 46 mins. 1 sec. 935.254 metres per. minute.

JOHN BELLIFEMINI

PORT PIRIE - Savoy was kept idle last weekend while 12 separate Preliminary Challenge Cup rounds were played and decided, however players selected for 2024 SA Inter Association Amateur Challenge squad that will be played this coming long weekend see Savoy and second time selections go to Jack Scoot and Mason Baumann.

Both Scoot and Bauman have the all clear from Savoy coach Vincent DeGioia to participate even though the Green and White coach has players on his injury list as it closes on mid-season.

All 10 Premier Division clubs from the Saturday and Sunday leagues are represented while the selected coach is Steve Hughes for the Sunday combined squad, and John Mastropaolo for the Saturday, that presently comprises of some of 24 players but with the selected 20 for both picked tonight.

Last season inaugural winner was the Collegiate League that went on to defeat the Sunday combination and again it is Elizabeth Downs that leads the selection list with five players followed by the Modbury Jets with four.

Downs five players selected are Bailey Truscott, Braiden Gundlach, Darcy Clark, Michael Gomes and Sam Watson.

Last year the final was played between the Sunday and Collegiate Selects and at halftime the scores were 1-1 before both scored again for 2-2 before Collegiate Ben Takos scored the 86th minute winner and 3-2 final score.

Kart club in action

JACK O'HALLORAN

THE Whyalla Kart Club hosted its first race meet of the month on the weekend with great performances from some of the city's best go-kart speedsters.

Practice laps began at 10am followed by the first races at 12.30pm, beginning with the Cadet 9's which featured competitors as young as nine years old.

Luke McLean recorded the best time among the Cadet 9 category, taking out top spot.

The next race saw Bailey Kirk take out the TaG125 Restricted Light category, followed by Christopher Page who took out the 4SS Senior Medium category.

TaG stands for Touch and Go, and are two-stroke go-karts which can be started with a button or key switch as opposed to the 4SS (four-stroke) karts which need to be pushed.

The unrestricted TaG karts came next, in an exciting 12-lap race in which Luke Clee came out on top followed by Andrew McLean in second, Scott Harper in third and Brian Sampson fourth.

Cadence Florentinis took out the TaG 125 Light category, but not before a crash late in the day resulted in an eventful finish.

This weekend the Whyalla kart Club will host two days of racing as part of the statewide body KartSport, with gates opening at .30am on Saturday, June 8 and 7.30am on Sunday, June 9.

St Joseph tackle Vikings

SUE DALLA SANTA

PORT AUGUSTA - In the Port Augusta netball A grade competition on the weekend, St Joseph set a new benchmark in its game against Vikings.

Not only were goalers Amanda Horner, 25/33, and Macey Badcock, 31/37, having a glorious match but the Indie Winton, Libby Harrison and Courtney Hannigan combination owned the midcourt.

The chain of passes was basically uncontested until the last quarter when Vikings displayed some desperation.

The game changed for Vikings when Wing Defence Amelia Etchells in a contest crashed hitting her head on the court exiting the game in the first quarter.

Joe's accelerated its game plan, and the rest is history.

Vikings tried hard to peg back the 14-goal deficit all to no avail.

The contest in Vikings goal circle was hot as Jessie Harris 33/42, Ellyssa Myles and Lahni Von Senden were closely monitored by Joes Haylee Harris and Zara Heritage for interceptions and rebounds.

Young Von Senden in the last quarter was impressive.

Usual goaler Tiana Freeman is expected to line-up for the next game after recovering from a calf injury.

St Josephs powered home 58-44.

Best games Badcock, Winton, J Harris, E Myles.

MAGPIES v RAILWAYS

In the A grade, Magpies turned the heat on Railways in the first quarter 13-10.

Jada Grosser scored the first goal of the game.

It was wake up time for Railways in the second quarter 18-9 and third quarter 13-7.

Charlotte Hill and Mikayla Mill had height and body strength advantage in the goal circle against Magpies defenders.

Magpies fixed that issue in the second half of the game by coupling Elle Packard and Sadie Redden together as defenders and placed skilled midcourter Gail Warren as wing defence.

Zara Thiele and Kelsey Pyman switched in the midcourt positions.

All the moves paid dividends in the fourth quarter.

Magpies outscored Railways 13-12.

Once Ammy Singleton, Mikala Fuller and Mill find the front lead it is hard to dispose them of possession.

Rosie Venning is feisty in the defence line and works well with Chenille Digance to flow the ball through the midcourt.

Magpies did well to compete solidly against such an impressive physically stronger opposition, but went down 42-53.

Best games came from Singleton and Redden.

B GRADE

Vikings Blue had a blistering second quarter to outmaster Magpies at half time 29-23.

The predominately young team led by Casey Lukich had smooth flow of play up and down the court.

Lahni Von Senden 26/33 and Lukich 27/34 blended well together to outplay Magpies defence line Katelyn Barnett, Stacey Colson and Kahmesha Wilton.

It was hard to stop the accuracy of Vikings 53-44.

Playing on the outside courts with a slight breeze did not favour the goalers in St Josephs and Railways.

One deciding factor to the game was the brilliance of Railways defender Georgia Grantham who intercepted any high passes to St Joseph's goalers Addison Blinman 12 goals Taya O'Dea 16 goals and Zali O'Dea 10 goals.

Railways other determined player was goaler Tanikka Warren in the second half who turned the game for Railways 39-38.

E grade Vikings led by defenders Amber Lawler and Bree O'Grady won many rebounds against St Josephs to turn over play to dominate all four quarters.

Goalers Lieesha Stuart-Bejah 10 goals, Shaunna Hobbs 30 goals and Rebecca Lee 10 goals tallied 50 goals to outscore Joes 20 for the win.

Magpies Chloe Martin was in accurate form with 36 goals with Charli Thomas 25 goals taking a support role.

The cohesion between Jasmine Barnett and Deanna Thomas in the midcourt was an added strength to the team to keep Railways at bay 61-42.

UNDER 13, DIVISION ONE

Under 13 division 1 Vikings Blue had the game wrapped up in the first quarter 19-2 against Railways.

Poppy Doran 25 goals had a boomer of a goal shooting day with Amber Carter 16 goals.

Railways steadied in the last three quarters with position changes to combat the dynamic Vikings playmakers in Maygen Fricker, Kaileigh Thompson and Christie Bowshire.

Well done to Railways Krystal Colson 11 goals and to Chase Warren for his versatility to switch from goaler to defender.

Vikings Blue held strong 41-17.

St Joseph's Blue know how to kick start a game.

Its first quarter lead against St Joseph's Gold was 8-3.

Gold was forced to switch a few players around to curb the influence of Maddison Corbell, Scarlett McLachlan, Mary Cresp and Isabella Warren in the midcourt.

The late burst from Gold was too late.

St Joseph's Blue won 25-15.

Spencer Gulf flies high

JACK O'HALLORAN

REGION - In the interleague match on the weekend, Whyalla fought it out against Spencer Gulf in a see-sawing battle that resulted in some great individual efforts from both teams.

Earlier in the day the under 15 Whyalla side was beaten convincingly by SGL, going down by 77 points.

Zechariah Amos was best on for the winning side, alongside Addysan Di Paolo, Rylan Pillion, Angas Wilton and Seth Smith.

Despite the result there were still some great performances from the Whyalla lads, including Alanzo Howden, co-captain Lucas Westervoorde, Rylan Thomson, Noah Reschke, Jacob Edwards and the sole goal-kicker for Whyalla, Zavier Briffa.

Unfortunately for Whyalla it was a similar story in the under 18 match, with SGL winning comfortably by 49 points.

Ronan Coombe, Raymond Stapleton and Baylin Crouch (three goals) were in the best for SGL, who were simply too good on the day against a tough opponent in Whyalla.

Again, there were some solid individual efforts for Whyalla with Jaiden Rodriguez, Jake Hogan, Charlie Woolford, Oleh Trus, Charlie Wilson and Stephen Smyth (three goals) all named in the best.

Many of the young players have been playing senior football this year as well and will undoubtedly be stars to look out for in the years to come.

TEAMS DO BATTLE

The league match got underway at 2pm, the deluge earlier in the day making for trying conditions.

Whyalla shot out of the blocks from the opening bounce and kicked three goals to nil to take the upper hand early on.

While SGL managed to hit the scoreboard in the second, Whyalla controlled the flow of the game, leading by 26 points at half time.

Following the break SGL began to fight their way back into the contest, coming back to edge in front by four points at three-quarter time.

There were some big moments in the fourth term, with a set-shot goal to Whyalla captain Myles McNamara getting them back into the game.

But Oliver Ebert was brilliant up forward for SGL, going on to kick five goals for the game and as the final siren sounded it was SGL that led by 13-points, mirroring Whyalla's winning margin in last year's combined game.

Best-on-ground honours went to Nicholas Kraemer from SGL who pulled his side back into the contest from four goals down, with Oliver Ebert and Ethan Gade battling hard as well.

For Whyalla it was the Roopena and Central midfielders that put on a show, as Clayton Mesecke (two goals), Jack Luders, Cooper Huish, Michael Wanganeen, Cliffy Pickhaver-Tupe and Jarrad Parish were all named among the best.

WFL President Bob Head lauded SGL's performance, emphasising the ebb and flow nature of the contest but that SGL were the better side on the day.

"I thought we probably had them on toast in the first half, but they came back strong towards the end and got the job done," he said.

Spencer Gulf League president Les Promnitz said the league side was the youngest he had seen in the inter-association game for as long as he could remember.

He said Whyalla had the jump on Spencer Gulf in the first half, as they were four goals down by quarter time and they had only landed a minor score by the first break.

"We kicked a goal in the second quarter and they were up with five to six goals so we were still almost five goals down at half time," Promnitz said.

The side began to make a comeback in the second half, as Whyalla were beginning to slow down.

"We kicked nine goals to three in the second half and our young players just ran a muck," Promnitz said.

The president said midfielder Nick Kraemer was unstoppable in the middle.

"We were getting first hands to the ball through Ethan Gade in the ruck," he said.

"Oliver Ebert played up forward in the pocket and flank and kicked five goals, the rest were single goal kickers.

"Our captain Dwayne Colson played a real captain's game all over the ground."

The president said Spencer Gulf were relentless in the second half and would not let Whyalla back into the game, winning by 13 points.

"To win all three games of the carnival was pretty good… we were pretty happy overall with the three grades."

Kiwi continues winning way

KIWI recorded its second big win in as many weeks in the Whyalla netball A grade competition, following up a 50-point win against Ravens last round with a 58-point win over Roopena this week.

Watson receives honour

JACK O'HALLORAN

THE president of the Whyalla Squash Club was recognised with a Service Award from Squash SA at the state body's 2023 awards night last week.

Jim Watson has been an avid supporter and promoter of squash in Whyalla for a number of years now and has been heavily involved in junior development at a state level.

Watson said that although the award recognised his individual achievements, it more so reflected the hard work and dedication of the club and its members as a whole.

"I've never done any of the things that I've done for the sport for myself - I've just always been focused on what we can do for the sport and how we can promote it, how we can get kids involved," he said.

Watson said he began playing squash aged 12, and although he has been involved in a number of other sports squash has remained his favourite.

"I've played a lot of sports over my time, I've done 25 or 30 years of karate as well… played soccer, but squash for me is the best sport."

As well as his commitment to the sport as a coach and administrator, Watson is still one of the top 50 players in the state and finished runner-up in the Australian Masters competition last year.

Despite the individual achievements he has had, he said the pinnacle of his career was being asked to become a state coach.

"I was a state coach in 2018, along with James Rogers, who's the high-performance coach in South Australia… so we went to national titles with a team of juniors to Darwin, and for me, that's probably the highlight of my squash career."

Squash was recently included in the 2028 Summer Olympics for the first time, something which Watson said would hopefully put the sport back on the map and create a new level of exposure.

"Squash has been trying for many, many years to get across that line, and it's been a very difficult road for the sport considering its popularity in the 60s, 70s and 80s."

The Whyalla Squash Club has both racquetball on Monday nights and squash on Thursday nights for people of any level to come and try.

"We're always looking for new players… you can come in at any level, from absolute beginner to experienced players, we can accommodate anyone and it's a great atmosphere," Watson said.

For those wanting to learn more head to the Whyalla Squash facebook page or email whyallasquash@gmail.com for more information.
